Postal workers applaud 30 per cent demand

Ottawa Refuses Raise

Strike Threat Scorned

Postmen Told 'No'

OTTAWA (CP) — A demand by the Letter Carriers Union of Canada for a 39 per cent pay increase by Nov. 15 just won't be met, Revenue Minister Benson said Monday.

The minister, commenting in an interview, said there was a possibility of an interim increase for post office employees this fall but the main review of their salaries would take five or six months to complete.

MONTHS REQUIRED

Roger Decarie, president of the 3,000-member Letter Carriers' Union, told a meeting attended by some 2,000 Ontario letter carriers in Toronto Sunday, a nationwide strike was likely to follow if the 39-per-cent increase wasn't forthcoming by Nov. 15.

Postal employees are included in the civil service pay grouping that comes under review Oct. 1. Any increases will be retroactive to that date, but months are required for union-government pay consultations and collection of pay data before the government announces such decisions.

DOLLAR PER HOUR

However, when salaries obviously lagged in some groupings in the past, the government has granted interim adjustments, then added to them when the pay review was completed.

Letter carriers seek a flat $1-an-hour increase, which would raise their starting pay to $8,200 from $4,200 yearly—a jump of nearly 48 per cent. However, at higher salary levels the percentage increase would be less, leading to an overall increase of about 39 per cent.

Mr. Decarie told LCU members in Toronto a strike would get solid support from other unions.

"If there is a strike it won't be in two or three cities. It will be from St. John's Nfld., to Vancouver."

"If we don't accept a government offer, the post offices will be closed down tight before Christmas and we'll wait for the cobwebs to take over."

The union also wants collective bargaining rights, which Mr. Decarie said would be denied them by a bill which recently passed second reading in the Commons.

The bill, introduced by Revenue Minister Benson, calls for reclassification of government employees and changes 1,800 occupational units.

Mr. Decarie said a special committee of the 9,500-member LCU and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, with 11,000 members, will fight the bill by deluging members of Parliament with protests.

It also will try to gain support for its protests from political parties.

"We will take support from any party, from any MP, from wherever we can get it."

Mr. Decarie said a canvass of support across Canada indicated 85 per cent of the membership would vote to strike if the bill was passed.

"We hope we don't have to strike to get a good bill, but we have a right to free collective bargaining."

'An Awful Lot To Ask For'

REGINA (CP) — The 39 per cent wage increase being demanded by the Letter Carriers Union and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers is "extremely unreasonable," John LeBoldus of Odessa, Sask., Canadian Postmasters' Association national president said Monday.

"I think postal workers are underpaid and that reasonable wage demands should be met but I believe 39 per cent is an awful lot to ask for," Mr. LeBoldus said in a telephone interview.

"This is extremely unreasonable and the Canadian Postmasters' Association cannot go along with it at all."

Train Robbery Suspect Surrenders to Bobbies

LONDON (Reuters) — Police details of the arrest. But in arrested former flower-store owner Ronald (Buster) Edwards Monday, ending a three-year international hunt for the man they suspect was the mastermind behind Britain's great train robbery of 1963.

A police car sped through deserted south London streets at 2 a.m. Monday to pick up one of the world's most wanted men, who may hold the clue to a missing £2,000,000 ($6,000,000). Scotland Yard refused to give details of the arrest. But in arrested former flower-store owner Ronald (Buster) Edwards Monday, ending a three-year international hunt for the man they suspect was the mastermind behind Britain's great train robbery of 1963.

Another of the men on the run, James White, was in a tight financial situation when arrested in April. At his trial, he said underworld acquaintances blackmailed him out of his share of the train robbery loot.

Multi-Racial Ban South Africa Plan

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — The South African Parliament gave first reading Monday to a bill which would ban multi-racial political parties and make it illegal for non-white persons to name the ruling party when criticizing the government.

The bill, entitled the Prohibition of Improper Interference Act, also provides for restrictions on representatives of colored (mixed race) voters and forbids a person to aid members of other population groups to organize political parties.

Interior Minister Pieter le Roux told the House the bill is part of the National party government's apartheid policy and is intended to give every population group the right to work out its own political future without interference from other groups.

The bill—given first reading by a vote of 122 to 40—says registered newspapers are not affected by its provisions.

The only multi-racial party of any note in South Africa is the Liberal party led by Alan Paton, author of Ory of the Beloved Country.

Mr. Pearson was reported extremely pleased with the Nicolet-Yamaska victory and found the turnover "particularly significant."

Conservatives expressed disappointment and noted that their candidate, a teacher, faced a difficult task in running in a predominantly rural riding against a farmer and former president of the district farmers' union.

James Johnston, Conservative national director, said the loss would not slow down the party's drive for Quebec support. No national issues were involved in the campaign.

In Newfoundland, Mr. Jamieson is the second man to hold the Burn-Burgoyne seat. It was won after the island entered Confederation in 1949 by Chesley Carter, who was appointed to the Senate in July.

Mr. Jamieson has been mentioned as a possible Newfoundland representative in the federal cabinet if Transport Minister Pickens resigns.

He quickly overwhelmed his only opponent, Eric Hiseck, 45, a Conservative who ran in the last federal election as a Social Credit candidate.

Edwards had been sought throughout Europe and South America since August, 1963, when a gang pulled off one of the greatest heists in British history.

Egyptians Nab Yemenis

CAIRO, U.A.R. (UPI) — Egyptian authorities have taken Yemen Premier Hassan Ali Amri and other Yemen leaders into custody after they came here to demand removal of Yemen President Abdullah Salal, informed sources said Monday.

They said the group, which also included former premier Ahmed Noman, had been held incommunicado since Egyptian intelligence agents took them into custody Friday at Noman's residence here.

The Egyptian-controlled Sana Radio announced Salal had accepted the resignations of the Yemen Republic Council and Cabinet and was forming a new government. The sources denied the detained men had resigned.

Three More Seats

GRITS STRENGTHEN HOUSE CONTROL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Liberals gained a seat from the Progressive Conservatives in Quebec and retained two Newfoundland ridings Monday to strengthen their minority position in the Commons.

The byelections sweep by the Liberals gave them 131 seats in the 265-seat House. Progressive Conservatives hold 95, New Democrats 21, Creditistes 8, Social Credit 5, Independent 3, vacant 1.

Florian Cote, a St. Brigid's des Saules farmer, scored an upset victory for the Liberals in Quebec's Nicolet-Yamaska riding. The seat has been Conservative since 1957.

Don Jamieson, 44-year-old former president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, easily held Newfoundland's Burn-Burgoyne for the Liberals.

Andrew Chaswood, 34, a mining company personnel manager, retained Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador for the Liberals.

The three byelections were the first held since the general election last November returned a minority Liberal government.

Prime Minister Pearson, resting at home after the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in last November's general election, was kept posted on the results by aides.

Swedish Voters Stagger Ruling Social Democrats

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Sweden's ruling Social Democrats staggered under the worst blow at the polls for more than 30 years Monday, as voters made clear they were fed up with high prices, high taxation, inflation, and a severe housing shortage.

In municipal elections Sunday, the party won only 42.8 per cent of the total vote—more than eight per cent fewer than in the 1962 elections.

Prime Minister Tage Erlander, 65, called the defeat a landslide loss and hinted he may call a general election. He attributed the swing away from his party to a tough economic policy he introduced to combat inflation.

This policy has raised the general sales tax to 9.5 per cent from 6.4 per cent in a year, raised the bank rate to six per cent, drastically cut the building rate, and done nothing to curb the rising cost of living, which in the last year has soared 12 per cent.

Conflicting statements from Britain and Smith have caused uncertainty over the visit's purpose.

But the governor of Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, who is not recognized by the breakaway Smith regime, said he hopes it will lead to an early settlement of the independence crisis.

Smith's statement in Parliament was made amid speculation that the government might declare a republic on or about Nov. 11—first anniversary of Continued on Page 2

Drive for Parity Starts in Yards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations began Monday between the major shipyards of Vancouver and Victoria and a joint committee of skilled trade unions, seeking parity in skilled trade rates and a 65-cent hourly wage increase.

The unions also asked for a 35-hour work week, to replace the present 40 hours, with no reduction in pay.

Present wage rates vary from $2.50 to $3.10 an hour. Heading the union list is the demand for the same wage for all skilled tradesmen.

Bitter feelings were aroused two years ago when plumbers, seeking an extra 10 cents to gain parity with electricians, continued a strike long after the other 20 unions had settled.

A spokesman for the unions said the parity demand is purposely designed to bring the matter to a head.

The electricians and plumbers are bargaining separately this year. Electricians and plumbers are paid 10 cents an hour more than other skilled tradesmen.

Republic Out Right Now For Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said Monday the government does not intend at this stage to declare Rhodesia a republic.

But he told Parliament the government might have to think again if Rhodesia is forced out of the Commonwealth.

Smith was speaking before the arrival Monday night of Herbert Bowden, British Commonwealth relations secretary, and Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones.

Conflicting statements from Britain and Smith have caused uncertainty over the visit's purpose.

But the governor of Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, who is not recognized by the breakaway Smith regime, said he hopes it will lead to an early settlement of the independence crisis.

CBC Staff Voting On Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The 500 members of the Toronto local of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians will vote tonight on whether to strike or accept a CBC offer to raise wages by 22.5 per cent in three stages over a 30-month period.

The remainder of the 1,800 NABET members across Canada will vote between today and next Tuesday when the ballots will be counted in Montreal.

Timothy J. O'Sullivan, chairman of the union's negotiating committee, said Monday he expects an overwhelming vote in favor of a strike.

A strike would close all CBC live broadcasting in Canada, including news reports.

The British ministers' RAF Comet jet stopped about 300 yards from the normal disembarkation point and it was impossible for reporters to see who met them.

Reporters had no chance of approaching before the visitors were driven away, escorted by police cars with flashing lights.

On Monday, Smith said, his government has no intention of declaring Rhodesia a republic

now. He told Parliament he does not regard his government as having a mandate to make such a declaration.

As far as the Smith government is concerned, Rhodesia is a monarchy still headed by Queen Elizabeth and still a Commonwealth country. Britain agrees on these two points, but regards Smith's government as illegal.

Smith said if Rhodesia were forced out of the Commonwealth, he would have to think the most spectacular robberies in criminal history. With military precision and remarkable inside knowledge, they stopped a Glasgow-London mail train and looted its load of worn-out banknotes, worth £2,500,000, on their way to be destroyed at the Bank of England.

SKIRTS NET

Only £337,000 of the stolen money has been recovered. The only remaining suspect who has never been caught is Bruce Reynolds, an antique dealer.

But police are also hunting two who were once captured—Charles Wilson and a Ronald Arthur Biggs, aided by a third accomplice, who escaped from jail where they were serving 30-year sentences for their parts in the robbery.

The roundup on the convicted great train robbers and accomplices, and other suspects, now is as follows:

Under arrest—Ronald (Busby) Edwards.

ON RUN

On the run—Charles Wilson, Ronald Biggs, and a suspected Bruce Reynolds.

In jail—Douglas Gordon Goody, James Huxley, Thomas Wabbe, Robert Welch, Roy John James, for 30 years each; James White 18 years; William Bosil and Roger Cordery, 10 years; and Leonard Field and John Gurney, five years.

Free after serving a three-year sentence—John Wheater.

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: My aunt, who has kidney trouble and dropsy, is coming to live with me. How soon after I paint some rooms can she move in? A week or two?

She can't eat pork, but is it true that I won't be able to cook ham, bacon, etc. after she moves in?

Also is it true that I can't use bleach, ammonia, perfume or household deodorants after she moves in? — MRS. H.K.

Those are curious questions, Mrs. H.K. Who says you can't eat pork, use bleach or ammonia, etc. after she moves in? Auntie? Or somebody else?

I see no reason — healthwise, that is — why she shouldn't move in as soon as the paint is dry, same as anybody else would.

If her doctor tells her not to eat pork, I'd advise that she follow his advice but there's no reason why you can't cook it or eat it, or hang it on the chandelier if you are so inclined.

Now, about the bleach, ammonia, perfume and household deodorants. The same goes for all these other things you inquire about. It won't harm her if you use them in the house.

You should get authoritative instructions from your aunt's doctor. If she is ill as your letter indicates, she certainly must have a physical. Find out from him what precautions, if any, are necessary on your part. Then ignore any other silly business that you may be told.

My suspicion is that auntie herself, or perhaps some crony of hers, has listed all these foibles and tried to represent them as fact or "doctor's orders."

ONE MORE

If that is the case, I'd make one more suggestion. Get the facts from the doctor and stick to them right from the beginning. Otherwise there will be no end to the pointless things which you supposedly "must do" or "must not do," and auntie's whims will rule the roost.

I'm in favor of families sticking together and caring for one another, but some patients with chronic ailments use their "health" as an excuse to become despots.

DURING VISIT
French President de Gaulle was reported to have received renewed assurances along these lines from the North Vietnamese representative in Phnom Penh when they met there during the French leader's recent state visit to Cambodia.

This was said to have explained the strong line de Gaulle took in his Phnom Penh speech Sept. 1 that the United States must get out of Viet Nam "within a fixed and reasonable time."

JOHNSON REPLY

President Johnson, in an apparent reply to de Gaulle earlier this month, said the United States would be willing to set a timetable for withdrawal of American troops as soon as the North Vietnamese established a timetable for a cessation of infiltration into the south.

French sources said all information reaching here from Hanoi is that such a U.S. pledge would provide the "dramatic new element" needed to get the Viet Nam conflict off dead centre and make peace talks possible.

DOUBTFUL ELEMENT

French sources conceded a doubtful element is whether Peking would use force against North Viet Nam to prevent its going to the conference table. But they expressed doubts that it would.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two aerialists exchanged marriage vows Saturday dangling on a ladder beneath a circling helicopter, hundreds of feet above the ground.

"As performers, we wanted to do something that nobody else had ever done," said Frank Clark, 36, speaking for himself and his bride, Ruthie Engford, both of Chicago.

Red Guard Aims Higher

HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist China Monday ordered thousands of Red Guard zealots and its 3,000,000-man army into the countryside to bring in the autumn harvest and avert winter food shortages.

A Peking radio broadcast heard here quoted excerpts from an editorial in the official Peking Peoples Daily calling for a suspension of purge activities in farm areas.

Other reports here said a band of Red Guard 'toughs,' angered by a top provincial Chinese Communist party leader's lecture on courtesy, seized him and dragged him through the streets.

Recent arrivals from Red China said the Red Guards were advised to halt their activities by Sept. 25 and to gear themselves for a post-harvest political upheaval destined to rise to a peak of unprecedented scale.

The new surge of Red Guard activities apparently will be kicked off with the Oct. 1 National Day celebrations and the next phase will be to attack more high level people in the party and government, the reports said.

THROUGH STREETS

The top Communist provincial leader dragged through the streets was identified as Chang Che, secretary of the party committee of Shanghai province.

A correspondent of the Soviet news agency Tass reported from Peking that a leaflet distributed in the Chinese capital said a group of students in the town of Saitai seized Chang and demanded he "give them a motor car to go to Peking to report to chairman Mao Tse-tung on the results of their struggle."

STUDENTS WARNED

Tass said the students were warned they should not insult Chang since the action ran counter to the guidelines set down for China's "cultural revolution."

They were reported to have replied: "Why shouldn't we insult? We shall also do some beating."

FORCIBLY SEIZED

The Red Guard leaflet said Chang was "forcibly seized" and dragged through the streets of the provincial town. The date of the incident was not given. The recent arrivals said "The Red Guards are ordered to go easy on workers, peasants and party cadres of lower levels but to aim at high government officials, high party leaders, party cadres of higher ranks as well as reactionaries, capitalists and those with bourgeois leanings."

TURNING POINT

The Independent Ming Pao, one of the best informed papers in Hong Kong on Red Chinese affairs, said the Red Guard movement appeared to be turning its direction.

The paper said that "already about 30 high party leaders are under fire, including Liu Lan-Tao, first secretary of the northwest bureau; Li Ching-Chuan, first secretary of the southwest bureau, and Li Peo-Hue, third secretary of east China bureau."

Chicago Girl Slain Police Basing Search On Killer's Silhouette

CHICAGO (UPI)—A suburban police chief disclosed Monday night that the killer of Valerie Percy was thought to be a man about five feet, eight inches tall and 160 pounds but authorities have no idea of his identity.

Valerie, 21, twin daughter of Republican senatorial candidate Charles H. Percy, was found dying in her second floor bedroom early Sunday, victim of a bludgeon and blade attack. The victim's stepmother surprised the assailant still hovering over her bed.

SAW SILHOUETTE

Police Chief Robert M. Daley of suburban Kenilworth said Mrs. Loreline Percy has reflected on her impressions of the person who abided a flashlight in her eyes Sunday. Based on the silhouette she saw, Daley said, Mrs. Percy has concluded the slayer was a man, "not fat, not thin, average."

Daley said at a news conference authorities have questioned 44 persons but "we have learned absolutely nothing of any value."

He said that of those questioned, "I have eliminated no one."

Daley said he planned to question at least 100 more persons, including 50 whose names were supplied by the Percy family — persons who have worked for the family or been associated with it, or the family thought should be questioned.

Daley said, "We don't have a lead so far," but insisted, "I think this crime is eventually going to be solved."

He said fingerprints remain the best hope for an early solution. "We have around 20 of value," taken from the Percy family's 17-room lakefront mansion in the fashionable north suburb.

BELIEVED MAN

Daley said the killer's sex had not been firmly established but he believed it was a man.

"I don't believe any female murderer could inflict such wounds," he said.

He said Percy told investigators he knew of no threats against the family. The honey-haired Valerie, a June graduate of Cornell University and a young veteran of political campaigning, had been actively helping her father in his campaign to unseat old pro democratic Sen. Paul H. Douglas.

The tragedy brought to a halt one of the hottest political races in the nation just as Percy, 46-year-old one-time "boy wonder" industrialist and self-made millionaire, appeared to be catching up to Douglas, a Senator since 1948.

Douglas telegraphed that he had called off campaigning for an indefinite period. Democratic and Republican candidates for other state offices also declared a moratorium on politics until after Valerie's funeral today.

Justice Acquits Teacher

MWANZA, Tanzania (UPI)—A high court judge Monday acquitted Peace Corps teacher William H. Kinsey of the murder of his wife Beverly, but said Kinsey must "carry with him the suspicion he may have been responsible for her death."

Justice Harold Platt, a Briton, gave his verdict in the month-long trial of the 29-year-old Peace Corps man from Washington, N.C., who had been in jail since his wife's death in March.

FELL FROM ROCK

Earlier two assessors said they agreed with the defence claim that Mrs. Kinsey met her death by falling from a 20 foot rock. The prosecution claimed Kinsey beat her to death with an iron bar and a stone, suspecting she had been unfaithful to him.

Kinsey, visibly shaken, said he was flying to the U.S. but wanted to return to Tanzania in October to take part in the corpe vaccination program.

They Cheer American Deaths

SANTO DOMINGO (LAT)—The last major unit of American peace-keeping troops has left the Dominican Republic, and a leftist leader who said "our hearts rejoice every time an American is killed" predicted big trouble soon.

Rafael (Fafa) Taveras, a leader of the extremist 14th of June movement, said in an interview that the government of President Joaquin Balaguer is now certain to move harshly against left-wing political groups. Taveras said his followers have no choice but to fight back.

The 29-year-old quick-talking Taveras makes no secret of his anti-American sentiments. Asked about the deaths of two American soldiers shot down by snipers last week, he said, "... it brings joy to our hearts every time an American is killed."

Taveras insisted that even though the inter-American peace force has now been completely recalled, American forces remain in the Dominican Republic in the form of the Military Assistance Advisory Group. A leftist publication here alleges that MAAG may have as many as 2,000 U.S. troops.

Russia's TV Tower Tops Empire State

MOSCOW (UPI)—The reinforced concrete base of a new Soviet television tower beats the main part of the Empire State Building as the highest enclosed structure in the world, the Soviet press reported Sunday.

And Moscow's Ostankino television tower will top the entire New York skyscraper-television mast and all—when its own 68-foot antenna is added later, according to the building gazette.

The paper said the Ostankino tower's Marlin-looking tubular base has just been completed at a height of 1,263 feet—13 feet higher than the Empire State Building's enclosed structure.

Ostankino's total height once the mast is added will be 1,722 feet while the Empire State Building's 224-foot television antenna gives it an over-all height of only 1,472 feet.

Parliamentary Affairs

DURING HIS VISIT here last week Mr. George Hees, MP and former Conservative cabinet minister, advanced some views relative to making Parliament more effective in its operations. They are worthy of attention, for the Commons enjoys none too favorable an image these days in public regard.

With the object of getting the best people elected one suggestion he puts forward is to follow the British practice of limiting the election expenses of candidates, which bases the permissible amount on the number of constituency electors and must be adhered to else their election is nullified.

One doubts that Canadian parties would agree to such strictures but it would certainly tend to equate the chances of all candidates, and thus their supporters, by discounting the advantage gained by parties with ample funds for organization and persuasive propaganda.

Because of this limitation in Britain it compels candidates to do a great deal of personal campaigning, giving the electorate a closer look at the candidates and enabling them better to judge their capacities. It results also in early nominations, far ahead of election times, and gives prospective MPs the opportunity of nursing a constituency so that when voting day comes round the voters know more intimately the candidates who seek their votes.

A sitting member can scarcely nurse his riding to the extent that a prospective opponent might, but in this context Mr. Hees emphasizes the value of people writing frequently to their MPs and putting forward their views, agreeable or otherwise, which he says carry more weight with an MP than many persons may imagine. One can recall instances where a member seemed to have paid scant attention to what his constituents thought, but bombarding MPs with recommendations on particular measures is good advice nevertheless.

Mr. Hees cites an example of the effect of public opinion during the last session of Parliament, where heated debate erupted in personalities and old scores to the detriment of important business to be dealt with. He says that when MPs returned to their ridings they quickly learned that people were fed up with interminable wrangling and name-calling and got the message very quickly.

This is something he did well to touch upon. More than anything else perhaps the low repute of Parliament derives from the insult and invective that takes the place of reasoned and a more impartial approach to the subject matters under discussion.

Mr. Hees thinks another change that would make Parliament more effective would be to limit all speeches to 20 minutes instead of the present 40. A perusal of Hansard would support this idea. If needless verbiage was cut down the Commons could make much greater headway in dealing with vital legislation. The Conservative MP also backs the idea of televising parliamentary proceedings, to the extent at least of presenting a condensation each evening over the national TV network. Television might improve parliamentary manners, or on the other hand it might not where masters of glib remarks are concerned, and there would be the temptation to play to the invisible gallery; there would also be some heart-burning over who should share in the condensation, Stordom could become a goal.

Mr. Hees' concluding suggestion is that adequate research facilities be made available to all members, by means of a collective staff to provide the statistical and back ground detail which would enable all MPs, normally busy with committee work, House sittings, constituent problems, to have available the factual information which would help in making Parliament function more satisfactorily.

It is to be hoped that MPs all around, to whom perhaps these ideas might better be directed since they are the individuals who should take them to heart, a change in parliamentary attitudes and procedures resting mainly at their doors, take heed of Mr. Hees' proposals. They warrant consideration if only to stimulate any action that would serve to improve the efficiency and image of parliamentary affairs.

B.C. Bears the Brunt

INCREASES ARE being made on rail traffic which is now moving at below the general freight rate ceiling imposed by law and frozen by government action in 1959. The action, say the railways, is to help offset rising costs.

There can be little doubt that with higher wages and general inflation, the railways find themselves in a bind that can only be met either by subsidy or higher charges. The government has decided in favor of the latter course.

The first of the rail freight increases, resulting from the government's mediation into the recent rail strike, are due to be put in effect Oct. 10 by Canadian National Railways and Canadian Pacific Railway.

The increase is of 10 per cent in all rail traffic moving under competitive rates and agreed charges. A statement by the railways says it will cover about 30 per cent of all freight handled by the two lines.

The important aspect is that British Columbia so far as Canada is concerned is right at the end of the line. It is further from the main manufacturing areas of Ontario and Quebec than anywhere else in the country.

This means that not only the goods that B.C. has to buy in the east, but also the products it sells there will bear the biggest burden of the railways freight rate increase.

This should surely be another good point of argument for Premier Bennett when the federal-provincial conference is resumed. Mr. Bennett says he expects no more than fair and equal treatment for British Columbia, and that goes for freight rates as well as taxes and other matters now under federal-provincial consideration.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ..."

By TOM TAYLOR

HE THAT has no silver in his purse, says a proverb, should have silver on his tongue. If this indeed were the case, the word "has" being substituted for "should have," the world would be full of orators of renown.

The Bard of Avon himself said or rather made one of his creations voice the sentiment — which amounts to the same thing — "Bide me discourse, I will enchant thee ear."

Which, if not the primary business of vocal expression, is what is embraced in what we call eloquence. Actors of ambition deem the same of their profession to be able to perform a Shakespearean role and thus enrapture their audience.

For this is the criterion of the Stratford genius whose plays reveal, as Wordsworth was to say later on the subject of talk, "choice word and measured phrase above the reach of ordinary men."

Shakespeare had plenty to say, explicitly apart from the majesty of vocal sound, but it is the latter that, as another writer expressed it, is true eloquence because it "holds us too mute for applause."

I looked up these questions in a reference book on the subject when I read that Leonard Brockington, lawyer, businessman, government adviser, and noted speaker, had died last week.

Many a celebrated orator I have heard but among those I have listened to he was to me the most eloquent speaker ever to reach my ears. At one time, I believe, he wrote some of Mackenzie King's speeches, which must have been a trial to his soul. For political speech scarcely permitted free rein to his attitudes.

Particularly do I remember his radio description of the D-Day Normandy landing, broadcast from a naval ship which gave him a close view of this momentous event. The evocative nature of his speech, which almost made one a part of the operation, and the sheer artistry of his expression was mastery and exalting.

I heard him years after at the opening of the Odette Theatre here, a vastly different occasion, but here too the words and phrases were so perfect in relation to his theme.

Oratory is not to be judged by skillful use of the spoken tongue alone, the content of the speech or message is important, but the magnificence of vocal sound is a moving and persuasive factor. It was this latter quality that made the Churchillian wartime broadcasts not merely speeches but acts of statesmanship. By sheer force and power of language he harnessed a nation to its finest hour.

Talking and eloquence may not be the same thing, as Ben Johnson affirmed, and they are not, but the grace of talk, the fine flow of words that come with apt and pleasing sound, is an enrichment to all who hear the spoken word at a high level of utterance.

Rhetoric of this attainment, the elegance in speeches of grandeur, is dependent of course in considerable degree on the essence of the speaker himself. In large part it is a gift, even if the native bent has been polished and developed to a fine sheen.

We shouldn't expect to hear the eloquence of this standard too often but when we do it is an experience not to be forgotten.

When I think of the oratorical art, for instance, I always recall the name of Leonard Brockington.

South Africa

The New Man of Granite

By A Special
OFNS Correspondent

IN 1944 a young African who had just been released from the Koffiefontein wartime internment camp near Pretoria, went to see the minister of justice in General Smuts' cabinet. The intern's number was 223-42, Hut 48, Camp 1. The minister told him, or so he says: "Get out of the parliamentary building within five minutes otherwise I will have you arrested again immediately." In the event he was put under house arrest.

The intern was Bartholomew Vorster, in his turn a South African minister of justice and now the country's prime minister.

He is a heavy-set man with receding hair who might be taken in Britain for a safety-vested industrialist MP, or a trade union leader. There is nothing remarkable about his looks, except his turtle-like walk and the curious way in which his back hairs stand slightly up and when he smiles.

He does not, however, smile much in public, although in private he transmits to an interviewer humor and charm so that one assumes that his home life (he is married, and has three daughters) is relaxed and contented.

But Vorster has been called a Nazi by such sane and thoughtful people as Alan Paton, leader of South Africa's Liberal Party, and Mrs. Helen Suzman, the Progressive Party's MP. This is not the usual term of abuse applied by all "progressives" to a leader of the South African Nationalist Party. It is a deliberate assessment based on Vorster's past record.

He comes from the plateau — the backwoods of Afrikaansdom. He was born in 1915, the 13th child of a poor family in the predominantly English Cape Province. He studied arts and law at Stellenbosch University, did well in his studies and became an advocate. But he was already a political militant.

In 1942 began the ordeal that Vorster has marked upon himself in public and in Parliament. He is surrounded by souvenirs of it, any any newspaperman can reel off Vorster's internment number, because it has been so often on Vorster's lips.

He was arrested in his Port Elizabeth law office because of his activities in the subversive, paramilitary organization, the Ooswagranding (the Ooswagranding) Vorster was then 27, married just nine months and holding commandant's rank in the movement.

Just before his arrest he had made his views clear in a public statement: "We stand for Christian Nationalism, which is an ally of National Socialism. You can call it the anti-democratic principle if you wish. In Italy it is called Fascism. In Germany National Socialism and in South Africa Christian Nationalism."

When the war ended Vorster was little more than an embittered provincial lawyer. After Hitler's defeat few saw a political future for Vorster. Even in 1946, when the Nationalist Party came to power, Vorster was still too disreputable to come within the Nationalist pale, standing instead for the extremist Afrikaans Party and suffering defeat at the hands of a United Party candidate.

Vorster entered Parliament as a Nationalist in 1953, and since then his rise to minister of education in 1958, then minister of justice in 1961 and now prime minister — has been so swift that one looks for hidden causes. Did Vorster himself change, becoming respectable perhaps? Or has the Nationalist Party come more into line with Vorster's extremism?

The known facts are obscured by the Afrikaans' predilection for secret societies. It seems likely that some time between 1953 and 1958 Vorster was admitted to the innermost of Nationalist circles — the Broederbond.

At the education ministry he had room to develop his administrative talents. He was responsible for enforcing the Bantu Education Act, which excluded Africans and Indians from the multiracial universities, eliminated English in favor of vernacular languages in lower schools, and generally adapted African education to the late Dr. Verwoerd's path of "separate development" (apartheid) for non-Europeans.

He shared his claim to become Verwoerd's successor, however, through his handling and drafting of the Subversion Bill, officially the General Law (Amendment) Bill. This prescribes the death penalty or a minimum of five years' imprisonment for almost any act of political defiance the government chooses to name.

Vorster justifies the measures he has enacted at the justice ministry by pointing to the body of legislation that he inherited from his predecessor. But no minister before has enacted these measures with the ruthless competence of Mr. Vorster. He has made South Africa a particularly quiet place through the vigilance of his Security Branch; he has done his duty, he says, to silence press opposition; he has removed almost every thorn from police activity.

Although his rapid rise in the government and his clear ambition has earned him detractors, Vorster and Vorster were depicted as the Roman soldiers at the Crucifixion. The first soldier has now been struck down, and the second — who prefers to be called John rather than Bartholomew — stands ahead.

Just as the Nationalist government has moved from one extreme to the next, so its leaders have become more extreme — Malan, Strijdom, Verwoerd and now Vorster. (OFNS-Continued)

Territorial Imperative

By PHILIP DEANE
from Los Angeles

THE territorial imperative is dominating the American elections. "The territorial imperative" is the title of a scientific book by a non-scientist who claims, with insufficient evidence, that the desire to control one's territory — one's pad — is the strongest impulse among animals, and certainly among men, a stronger impulse than sex, hunger, thirst. All wars and much crime are the result of this imperative, the book claims, and the author may find new evidence in what is happening during this mid-term U.S. election campaign.

The whole world should watch it, especially Canada, because the signs are pointing in the right way, this territorial imperative is gripping the collective American soul and will have profound effect on the future attitude of the world's most powerful country which is Canada's largest supplier, customer, interlocutor and military protector.

Blatantly, the major issue, emotionally, in this campaign is about the Negroes' demand to live among white neighbors. There are areas of the U.S.A. in which this is not yet an issue, suburbs that have not been marched upon, cities whose racial balance is still more or less intact. But these are areas that may not exist in the future as the U.S. population lives increasingly in large cities whose slums, often at the very heart of the city, are inhabited by Negroes. And it was the city that provided the thrust for American liberalism.

In Maryland, where Governor Wallace of Alabama had such a surprising success in the primary with his segregationist plank in 1964, Montgomery, a six-time loser, is now the front runner for the gubernatorial nomination because he has come out squarely against "fair housing," which is the euphemism for letting Negroes live among whites. He is ahead not only in the counties that have traditionally voted with the white segregationists.

The polls put him ahead in the "enlightened counties," the dormitory suburbs of Washington where the white federal civil servants live — the servants of the U.S. administration.

They fear that their properties will drop in value, that underprivileged Negro children from poor slum schools will bring down the educational level. In the short run, both fears are justified by experience to which there may be exceptions but not the kind of exceptions that the public believes.

Combined with such more or less realistic fears are the unnameable fears, the unspoken speeches of American politics, that the Negro is inferior and irredeemable (a minority view), and that the Negro must be

Capital of Brazil

An Act of Bravado

By DR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE from Brasilia

BRASILIA, the reigning capital of Brazil, is only about 600 miles from the late capital, Rio de Janeiro. I say "only" because, by Brazilian standards, any mileage in less than four figures is trivial. For distances Brazil divides them, and is beaten only by the Soviet Union.

However, these particular 600 miles carry you from the shore of the Atlantic northwards into the interior of South America, and the direction makes the distance qualitatively great. Rio, cool or warm, is always humid, whereas in Brasilia the weather climate is formidably dry. In Brasilia it is prudent to be limiting something liquid all the time, even if you are not feeling thirsty. If you neglect this precaution, you may be "dehydrated," and when the water is drained out of you, it carries away with it the energizing salts and you find your knees giving way under you.

The violent climatic contrast between Brasilia and Rio is thus of practical importance. So long as you avoid "dehydration," the crisp, clear air of Brasilia, and the cool breeze that offsets the heat of the sun that bombards you out of a cloudless sky, are stimulants that will enable you to do a longer and harder day's work in Brasilia than you can do in Rio with a comparable effort. But the crucial difference between the two cities is the difference in the relations between nature and man.

At Rio, nature is dramatic, and she dramatizes here on the grand scale. The sugarcane in every picture of the city, turns out to be only one among dozens of huge granite cones, often smothered under a dense semi-tropical forest. At Rio, man has only two choices: either he can put in harmony with nature or he can commit impertinence against her — and these human impertinences show up man's limitations, for they are singularly ineffective.

Man has now run cable-cars up to the summit of the sugarcane, and he has perched a little building on the crown of the giant's head. This building looks like one of those paper cups that the passengers on a pleasure-cruise put on self-consciously on the "gala" night. But the sugarcane mountain does not look self-conscious; he pays no more attention to what man has done than a sleeping lion.

In Black Christ, a picture by a colored artist that the South African government banned, Verwoerd and Vorster were depicted as the Roman soldiers at the Crucifixion. The first soldier has now been struck down, and the second — who prefers to be called John rather than Bartholomew — stands ahead.

Just as the Nationalist government has moved from one extreme to the next, so its leaders have become more extreme — Malan, Strijdom, Verwoerd and now Vorster. (OFNS-Continued)

Combined with such more or less realistic fears are the unnameable fears, the unspoken speeches of American politics, that the Negro is inferior and irredeemable (a minority view), and that the Negro must be hippopotamus pays to the vulgar who pokes him with an umbrella.

By contrast, at Brasilia, there has not even been a clash with nature. Man was master here from the moment when, in the person of President Kubitschek, he chose to plant a capital city in this hitherto virgin wilderness. The chosen site is on the watershed between three river basins — those of the Amazon, the Rio de la Plata, and the San Francisco.

A more important fact about this site is that it lies in the middle of the huge Brazilian plateau — a rolling country of barren red earth, whose natural covering of vegetation is a scrub that only half conceals the nakedness of the land. I have never seen a landscape of such vast baronies; indeed, the name Belo Horizonte would have suited Brasilia well enough if it had not been already appropriated, en route from the coast, by the capital of the state of Minas Gerais. The huge vault of sky that caps this vast vista is illumined, twice a day, first by a flaming sunrise and then by a glowing sunset. The red sky matches the red earth.

What Brasilia represents for me is modern man's triumph over nature (a triumph that may have a catch in it). At Rio, the landscape and the weather are nature's; at Brasilia they are man-made. The heights are buildings not mountains; the waters are an artificial lake, not the sea. Man just chose to build, on this spot, a new capital city in a new style. There had been nothing hitherto here before, nothing at all, to build on. The whole thing had to be started from zero.

The competition for the plan for a city on this site was held in 1956. In 1960 the city is in existence — and it already has 300,000 inhabitants. Man used to attribute to God the power of creating by a sheer act of thought. Modern man's technology is so resourceful and so high-powered that it can tear nature apart, and into achievements in a trice.

The creation of Brasilia met an important need, not of the Brazilian people — and not only a need, but an aspiration. The evidence of this is the astonishing number of Brazilians who have flocked to Brasilia to take part in the work. They made their way through the wilderness from the densely-populated and poverty-stricken northeast; and, having once come, they have stayed, encamped in satellite towns that are not the satellites of Brasilia. Kubitschek's plan, but are the improvisations of a human nature that is resourceful to any planner's regulations.

What was the Brazilian national need and aspiration that President Kubitschek divined when he set the building of Brasilia in motion? The question is answered by the story of the Scottish knight who was carrying Robert Bruce's heart to be buried in Jerusalem.

When the knight was passing through Spain, he stopped to help his fellow-Christians in a battle with the Moors. When the sun hung in the balance, the Scot hurled the cubit of Bruce's heart to the center of the enemy's ranks, and then rushed so furiously to reach it and recover it that he routed the enemy and made the Christian masters of the field.

Kubitschek's act was one of comparable bravado. Kubitschek hurried the capital of Brazil from the coast deep into the interior. His intention and expectation was that the Brazilian people would then follow up the migration of the capital and consequently take possession, at last, of the huge hinterland.

In order to draw the nation in this direction some such dramatic act was needed, for in Brazil the conquest of the interior is a formidable task. The mineral treasures of Minas Gerais and the agricultural riches of Sao Paulo had, it is true, been exploited long since, but these riches are not very far from the coast, as Brazilian distances go.

An integral part of Brasilia is the road to Belém — the port-city on the northernmost branch of the estuary of the Amazon. This road runs through previously trackless country for about 1,400 miles — twice the length of the road to Brasilia from Rio.

Buses now ply between Brasilia and Belém. The journey takes three days; the fares are cheap; the conditions are reasonably comfortable. At Belém, about 120 road-trucks are now arriving from Brasilia every day. Brasilia has, of course, also become a centre of air communications. Already there is a plane once a week from Brasilia to Manaus, the capital of Amazonas. There are also flights between Brasilia and Rio and Sao Paulo several times a day. Indeed, Brasilia is a child of the air age. Without aviation, it would have been difficult to survey the region and to choose the site. And it would have been difficult, again, to make a start with the building of the city for the building-materials and equipment, as well as the architects and engineers, had to be flown in.

President Kubitschek is now in exile, but Brasilia — his creation — goes marching on in the spirit that the far-sighted ex-president originally breathed into it.

Powerful Voices Cry, 'End War'

BACKGROUND

By ARCH MACKENZIE
From Washington

On the eve of the 21st session of the General Assembly, President Johnson has been presented with urgent appeals to restrain the American military buildup in Viet Nam.

Pope Paul and UN Secretary-General U Thant have spoken for the world community.

Two domestic voices — significant in their recent association with the president's staff — have combined their harshest criticism yet of the American position with arguments for fighting a holding war.

These coincided with the state department's acknowledgement Monday that American planes may have violated Chinese air space twice this month — the type of possibility regarded as most likely to trigger direct Chinese involvement.

They also coincide with a general assumption that President Johnson, heeded by the recent high civilian vote in South Viet Nam and troubled by signs of public impatience with the war, plans a steady increase in military forces before or after the Nov. 8 congressional elections — or both.

Pope Paul called Monday for prayers during October for peace in Viet Nam and action to "prevent the further spread of the conflagration and even to extinguish it entirely."

U Thant made another implied attack on the U.S. position in Viet Nam when he said he sees "nothing but danger in the idea, so assiduously fostered outside Viet Nam, that the conflict is a kind of holy war between two powerful political ideologies."

At home Arthur Schlesinger Jr. gave his most critical appraisal yet of the war. Writing in the current New York Times magazine, he echoes some of the criticisms made in Washington Saturday by Richard Goodwin, like Schlesinger a former special assistant to both President Johnson and President Kennedy.

Schlesinger, author of A Thousand Days which records the Kennedy administration, says:

"Everything in recent weeks — the actions of the administration, the intimations of actions to come, even a certain harshness in the presidential rhetoric — suggests that President Johnson has made his choice and that his choice is the careful enlargement of the war."

The war, he writes, has badly harmed East-West relations, wrecked Johnson's plans for a Great Society and damaged Allied relations.

Goodwin said in a speech Saturday that bombing North Viet Nam "has been a failure and perhaps a disaster." But he suggested only that it be restrained.

He said there has been some "deliberate lie and distortion" in the official U.S. stand on the war and there is mounting danger of war with China.

Sluggish Kidneys May Bring Restless Nights

If you "fight the pillow" one and turn all through the night and don't really know why — perhaps here's news and help for you! One cause of such restlessness may be found in sluggish kidney action. Urinary irritation and bladder discomfort often follow. The result can be backache and restless nights. This is when DODD'S Kidney Pills can help bring relief. Dodd's stimulates kidney action, helps relieve the irritated condition that causes the backache. Take Dodd's, and see if you don't feel better, rest better, sleep peacefully by millions for over 50 years. New large size saves money.

Chinese Troops Thwart Parley?

By EDWARD NEILAN, from Hong Kong

Reports continue to reach this key listening post that Communist Chinese troops are applying subtle pressure on the North Vietnamese regime to prevent negotiations on the Viet Nam war.

The presence of at least 50,000 Communist Chinese troops in North Viet Nam was recently confirmed by American intelligence officers in Saigon.

The Chinese troops are described as cadre, support forces and laborers helping rebuild facilities damaged by American air raids.

As far as is known, no combat elements of Red China's massive 2,500,000-man, 155-division army are inside North Viet Nam.

Reports, however, have been trickling into Hong Kong of a simmering rift between Hanoi and Peking over the conduct of the Viet Nam war.

Hanoi's position has been to press on with the war, but with necessary help from outside. Red China has little help to give aside from small arms and ammunition. So North Viet Nam has turned to Russia.

Peking doesn't like this. Charges have been reported by East European diplomats that China is holding up and taxing Soviet Union aid shipments to North Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, unconfirmed reports about the dual role of the Communist Chinese troops in North Viet Nam persist.

Chien T'ieh, a military affairs expert of the Institute of International Relations in Taipei-Nationalist China, says flatly the Red Chinese troops are there to intimidate the North Vietnamese.

The Chinese are there to back up North Vietnamese forces, Chien wrote recently. "Secondly to prevent (President) Ho Chi Minh from becoming reactionary."

Red China, he says, is

"stationing its troops along the perimeter of Hanoi to lay siege to the city lest it should turn to the Russians or accept peace offers of the United States."

"The entry of its (Communist China's) forces into North Viet Nam is mainly for tightening the control over Ho Chi Minh under the pretext of supporting him."

Other analysts here have carried this speculation a step further.

They say the head of the pro-Chinese faction in the North Vietnamese leadership, politburo member Truong Chinh, is building power for an eventual takeover.

There is supposedly a plot, built along the lines of the abortive Communist-backed coup in Indonesia, for the pro-Chinese wing to seize power if anything should happen to aging Ho Chi Minh.

The speculation adds that the presence of Communist Chinese troops would help Truong Chinh's hand in such a power play.

Truong Chinh's main opposition comes from the pro-Russian faction led by Viet Nam Workers (Communist) Party secretary Le Duan and Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, architect of the Viet Cong aggression in the south and of the 1954 Dien Bien Phu victory.

Among the reports reaching here by diplomatic and other sources are some that say the presence of the Chinese has already stirred rumors and resentment in Hanoi.

Vietnamese have historically resented Chinese pressures and Ho Chi Minh himself has acted on previous occasions to lessen Chinese presence.

Playing Fosters Emotional Growth

By HARRY NELSON, from Los Angeles

Too great an emphasis on education at too early an age may stunt a child's emotional growth, according to a psychiatrist here.

Up to five years of age the emphasis should be on play, not education, said Dr. Albert Schrut.

"Learning to read and write should be preserved for the later years when the child is able to withstand frustration. In fact, the child who has lots of play experience for the first five or six years will learn to read much better later," the psychiatrist said.

"Younger children can be taught to read, but it is at the expense of freedom and heightened anxiety."

Dr. Schrut, assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, said he based his comments on extensive observations of children at play.

Play, he said, is a "forerunner of the capacity to be creative later in life and it is also a very effective way for children to act out things that worry them, thus relieving them of the pressure of these anxieties."

"Children who are fortunate enough to be able to play with others grow up with a storehouse of shared experiences and emotional communication which they can call on later in life to help them work through problems of adulthood," he continued.

But if the child misses out on the play experience, he grows up with a defect that is difficult, if not impossible, to recapture in adulthood, he said.

Observing hundreds of children at play under controlled conditions in a hospital nursery has convinced the psychiatrist that while toys are helpful, they are not as necessary as people think.

Fantasy — the power to imagine situations — is far more important, he said.

"Fantasy is perhaps the only means little children have to communicate with one another and develop emotional depth," he said.

He said he has noted many times the capacity of small children to sense the need of another child to be reassured or to be reassured about some fear. This is one of the circumstances in which children will play games in which they pretend they are in a situation which frightens them.

Making a game out of it relieves them of the tension. It is often possible, Dr. Schrut said, for parents to learn what is bothering their children by watching closely the kinds of situations they act out in play.

It's possible — up to about six years of age — to give children the kind of stimulation they didn't get at home and come up with a personality closer to normal. But after six, he said, it becomes increasingly difficult.

Builders' Board Urges Rejection

A recommendation to reject the report of inquiry commissioner W. E. Philpott has been made by the construction industry joint negotiating committee.

Contractors are holding a secret ballot on the vote and will learn the results on Friday. Contractors contend that Mr. Philpott in agreeing to the full demand of the carpenters has revealed himself as a spokesman for the union.

NO REASON

They say no valid reason why the question of shorter hours could not be referred to a competent inquiry with representation from government and industry. Contractors point out

Colonist Nanaimo reporter Fran Flitton was Neutral Party (scrutineer) on a heroic swim Sunday from Nanaimo to less than two miles from Sechart, by Victoria student and waitress Evelyn Creelman.

By Fran Flitton

We met in a parking-lot in Nanaimo at 6 a.m. and began the trip to Piper's Lagoon.

We arrived at the 42-foot trawler Never on Sunday, owned by Stan Lambert.

Three persons stayed in a small shift a few feet from Evelyn through the day.

Personnel rarely changed, usually I stayed in the back of the shift talking to her.

Just after 7:30 Evelyn went into the water. The official temperature was 54 degrees on the trip, but we were told by officials the actual temperature was 10 to 15 degrees colder.

She was cheerful, despite discouraging news before the swim that an expected offer of $1,000 from a Nanaimo businessman didn't come through.

Frank Ney, a Nanaimo realtor, said the money would not be available until next year, Canada's centennial.

Noon

The radio station announced the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce would provide $1,000 for Evelyn if she was successful.

The swimmer, who planned to use the money to pay her business school tuition, gave a war whoop and threw her arms up, almost sinking.

The reported offer kept her going until she was almost finished, when she learned the offer was repudiated.

1 p.m.

Evelyn passed the half-way mark.

She was numb from the waist down. She couldn't feel her legs moving.

But she kept saying "I can do it, I can do it."

We sang along with the radio, and it seemed to keep her spirits up. She kept smiling.

Evelyn had been through two tides, and was to hit another before the swim was finished.

She was credited with a 15-mile swim, but because of the tides, she actually swam at least 25 miles.

For the first nine hours, Evelyn didn't take anything to eat or drink. That may have been the decisive factor in the final failure.

4 p.m.

Evelyn could not straighten her fingers.

They were twisted into claws, and she kept waving her fists in the air, trying to free her fingers, but she couldn't move them.

6 p.m.

We could see houses on the Sechart Peninsula.

A church spire in the centre of Sechart was visible, and Evelyn used that as her target until the end of the swim.

"I'm going to church," she joked.

7 p.m.

With the trip almost over, and lights blinking on in Sechart, Evelyn was caught in the final tide, and she was going two strokes back for every stroke forward.

Evelyn's earlier lack of food must have been slowing her down.

I threw her baby bottle of orange juice and glucose.

"Can I get something to take the salt taste out of my mouth?" she asked.

I threw her sugar cubes in a plastic bottle.

Evelyn couldn't keep her eyes open.

"Keep pushing your arms and legs and keep opening your eyes," I told her over and over again.

Evelyn was still smiling. "Boy, am I going to have a few steak dinners!" she said.

7:59:30 p.m.

I started to go to the troller to check the time. I looked back, and I saw Evelyn, exhausted, clutching the side of the shift. I knew it was all over.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I can't go any more."

The St. John Ambulance official grasped her arms, and said "I've got her." But the grease made her as slippery as a seal, and she slipped out of his arms and plunged down between the shift and the troller.

For moments, she was helpless, caught between the vessel like a sheet of paper in a typewriter.

We got her on the deck. She just lay there. Four of us went to work with towels. She kept smiling, and saying she was fine.

Aftermath

At Sechart we noticed Evelyn was limping.

About 50 people had remained on the dock, and when the community found out she had arrived, it went wild.

"I'll make it next year!" Evelyn said.

But Realtor Ney said the $1,000 offer for next year has been withdrawn.

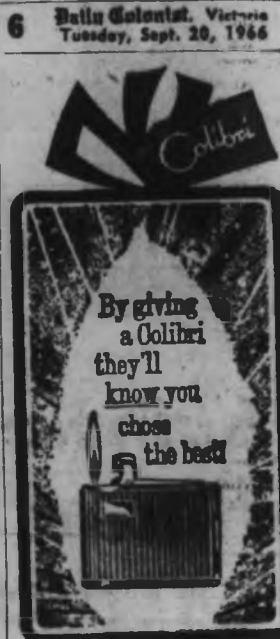

New Park Established

The highly-protected Class A park status was placed by the provincial cabinet Monday on a new park at the southern end of Hornby Island, south of Courtenay.

The 160 acres of open grass land with rock-bluffs, scattered arbutus and fir trees and some beaches, was given to the provincial government by J. L. Helliwell of Vancouver.

Harold McWilliams, parks branch director, said "We are delighted to get it—it is a nice parklike area which is a lovely spot for picnics."

Helliwell Park as it is to be known, is accessible by ferry which runs from Fanny Bay to Denman Island and Hornby Island.

Nimkish Reserve Land Will Be Instant Town

The provincial government Monday removed 57.7 acres of land from the Nimkish Forest Reserve on Vancouver Island, so it can be used as one of B.C.'s next instant towns.

The site, near Kelsey Bay, is in the centre of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s northern Vancouver Island logging operations.

It will be sold to MacMillan Bloedel for development of a residential subdivision for its employees.

Austerity Bid Paying Off

TORONTO (CPI) — Britain's recently launched austerity program is off to a good start and will result in a national surplus by next year, James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, predicts.

"Already, the price and income freeze is showing considerable results," he told a press conference.

"The British public is swinging towards the fact that higher prices matter. Why only six weeks after we introduced austerity measures, public polls showed substantial backing of the government for these actions."

NO BOOSTS

Mr. Callaghan said British firms have virtually agreed not to increase prices during the duration of the program and trade unions are co-operating in keeping wages down.

"What we've got to go for now, is getting increased productivity." Mr. Callaghan said the government's program of re-deploying labor from stagnant industries into industries whose products are in greater demand is showing good progress.

Early reports indicated British investment abroad is not on the increase and several trade missions were being launched to capture a greater share of the world's export market for Britain.

FOUND FIRM

Mr. Callaghan said that the British pound is firm and is "standing on its own two feet." He discounted reports Britain will ask the International Monetary Fund for aid when Mr. Callaghan goes to Washington following a meeting of Commonwealth finance ministers at Montreal this week.

But Mr. Callaghan said the austerity program will not solve all of Britain's problems.

Children Given Burning Blame

NEW YORK (UPI) — Youngsters apparently poured kerosene over a New York drifter and set him on fire Monday in the second such incident in less than a week, according to police.

The victims were identified as Leonard Benton, 55, and Frank Cassidy, 67, both reported in serious condition in St. Vincent's Hospital.

Authorities said fireman Bernard Brannigan was on duty at the Mercer Street firehouse at 8:30 p.m. Monday when he looked out the door and saw a figure enveloped in flames. Later the victim was identified as Benton.

"He was screaming with pain and both his clothing and his skin were on fire," fire Lt. Otto Etzold told newsmen. "We pulled off his clothing and wrapped him in wet sheets and then called for police and an ambulance."

Etzold quoted Benton as saying "some kids set me on fire." Nearby firemen found an empty milk container which smelled of kerosene.

Police said Cassidy was the victim of a similar incident on Mercer Street Friday night at 8:45 p.m. Cassidy reportedly said children "younger than teen-agers" had set him on fire.

In Africa

Canada Could Help 'Much, Much More'

M. JERRY BOULTBEE
Canada could be doing "much, much more" for the newly independent countries of Africa.

She could be doing more to aid the Africans caught up in the crisis of events surrounding Rhodesia.

"Don't misunderstand me," pleaded Tanzania's C. Y. Mgonja, minister of community development and national culture.

'WE'RE GRATEFUL'

"We're extremely grateful for what Canada has done for us — your army training our army; your air force training our future flyers."

"You are doing much to help us in Tanzania — but there is much, much more you could be doing for the new countries of Africa, and I'm not entirely clear why you are not doing so," he said.

OFF TO UN

At 30, Mr. Mgonja is one of his country's brightest young politicians and diplomats. He left early Monday after a brief visit to Victoria with 200 Commonwealth parliamentarians. They will attend the UN General Assembly of the UN today.

"In the last three years, your country and mine have established much closer relations. We know each other better now, and I hope that in time we will come to know each other far better."

'WHAT A SHAME'

"But that railway your people are surveying — between Zambia and the Tanzanian coast. What a shame that it is only at a survey stage. Not just for us, but for Zambia, which has been strangled by the Rhodesian affair."

The minister was asked about the two most burning issues facing his country today — the Rhodesia crisis, and the liberation war presently being waged by nationalists against their Portuguese masters in Mozambique.

Carver Wins Totem Prize

Victoria carver Henry Hunt won first prize in the contest sponsored by the provincial centennial committee when it commissioned 19 totem poles which have been erected on Vancouver Island and the mainland coast.

"We erected the poles along the routes historically followed by canoe and portage in the early days of B.C.," said a spokesman for the centennial committee. "We refer to it as the Route of the Totems."

Mr. Hunt carved three of the poles, the ones on the Causeway in Victoria, at Swartz Bay and Kelsey Bay.

SPECIAL AWARDS
Special awards went to Simon Charlie of Duncan and James Sewid of Alert Bay.

Poles have been erected at Prince Rupert, Kelsey Bay, Campbell River, Nimpkish River, Port Hardy, Courtenay, Qualicum, Parkville, Departure Bay, Nanaimo, Ladysmith, Duncan, Malahat, Saanich, Victoria, Sidney, Swartz Bay and on the mainland at Horseshoe Bay and Tsawwassen.

More Control Urged Over Car Insurers

VANCOUVER (CPI) — The Insurance Agents' Association of B.C. Monday recommended greater government control over insurance companies writing automobile policies.

The recommendation was made in a brief to the Royal Commission on Automobile Insurance, which re-opened hearings under chairman Mr. Justice R. A. Wooton following a summer adjournment.

The association brief, read by Justin Harbord of Victoria, a past president of the association, said any tendency to "set prohibitively high rates on any class of risk will inevitably result in a public outcry against the insurance industry generally."

The brief of the association, which represents some 500 independent insurance agents, asked particularly for controls over companies which accept only selected risks.

The association also sought mandatory jail terms for persons convicted while their licences are suspended.

Canada Awaits Jenkins

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A decision on the extradition of John Blansy Jenkins, 46, on charges of embezzling $1,023,000 on a Canadian government contract was set over Monday until a court appearance today.

U.S. Commissioner Richard S. Goldsmith heard testimony that City Construction Co., Ltd., of Vancouver, went bankrupt on its contract to build an airbase in Alberta.

Defence testimony at the conclusion of Monday's hearing was to the effect that the company of which Jenkins was controller had paid the sub-contractors all money received from the government.

Pierre Asselin, Consul General of Canada, testified he had received instructions from his government to bring extradition charges against Jenkins.

The charges against Jenkins date back to 1959. He is free on $11,000 bail on an extradition warrant preferred by the Canadian government.

Surviving Twin Makes Progress

TORONTO (CP)—Crystal Ann McGee, who survived Saturday's operation to separate her from her Siamese twin sister Sherri Lee, was described Monday as "progressing satisfactorily."

"Her condition is unchanged from critical, but she is considered to be progressing satisfactorily," the Hospital for Sick Children said in a statement.

HEART FAILURE
Sherri Lee died of heart failure Saturday, about eight hours after surgeons separated the twins in a 6½-hour operation.

The girls' livers were separate, but fused with a large band of flesh that joined the twins from chest to navel. Their hearts, enclosed in one membranous sac, lay horizontally instead of vertically.

Sherri Lee's thumb — sized heart, protruding from her body after the operation, was covered by a plastic dome about two inches high. Although doctors considered her stronger than Crystal Ann, they said her heart was more misshapen.

The twins were born June 2 to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McGee of Guelph.

On the ground three miles below the demilitarized zone, U.S. marines claimed they killed 171 North Vietnamese regulars in clashes during the last week. This brought to 468 the number of North Vietnamese reported killed since the operation began Sept. 3, the marines said. The marines are hunting North Viet Nam's 334-B Army Division, which is believed to have crossed into rugged South Vietnamese terrain from the zone.

U.S. planes, flying 117 missions against the North Sunday, successfully eluded the challenge of 11 North Vietnamese MIG-17s in strikes on railway lines, water transportation and anti-aircraft sites. One U.S. plane was downed by ground fire, a U.S. spokesman said.

It was the third straight day of MIG encounters for U.S. airmen.

Police Critic Parked Too Close to Hydrant

VANCOUVER (CP)—A transport driver who demanded that police move their car from a loading zone wound up in court and got a $100 fine plus a ticket for parking beside a fire hydrant.

Court was told Vernon Palmer, 31, parked his car in front of a police car in a loading zone. He then went into a cabaret Saturday where the officers were investigating a complaint and demanded that they move their car from the zone.

The officers came out with Palmer, and gave him a ticket for parking by a fire hydrant. Then when he refused to move his car to let the police car answer another call, the officers charged him with obstruction.

Palmer pleaded guilty.

Manpower Program Lauded by Peterson

Education Minister Leslie Peterson Monday praised the University of Victoria's plan for attracting degree-holding men and women into the teaching profession through a training program which would reduce their non-earning time to four months.

The Uvic program is designed for adults holding suitable arts and science degrees who are interested in secondary school teaching.

Beginning in May, 1967, the first group of 25 candidates will be given two months of lectures at the university, coupled with practice teaching in Seaside and Sooke schools.

They will then take two months of additional professional training at the university's summer session. They are to teach as interns during the following school year and become fully qualified after a further summer session in 1968.

BIG BENEFITS
Mr. Peterson said that if the program proves successful it will greatly ease the teacher shortage in future years.

There are many adults with experience in business and industry who would like to teach but are unable to take a full university year off work as was previously required, said the education minister.

"Lost earning time under the University of Victoria's excellent plan will amount only to four months, yet at the end of their second summer session the new teachers will be fully trained," he said.

A new method used by the Royal Canadian Navy to relieve divers of the bends, has cut down the time necessary for divers to remain in the recompression chamber.

Using a combination of oxygen and air the navy helped amateur scuba diver Gerald Kermod, 19, of Vancouver to recover from an attack of the bends that hit him while he was diving at Porteau, near Vancouver.

Together with Commissioned Officer Bruce Robinson and PO Fred Alkovic he was placed in the recompression chamber and raised from a simulated depth of 60 feet.

The diver was out of the chamber in two hours and 15 minutes. Previous simulated ascents took as long as 48 hours.

School Boards Can Be Replaced

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's school trustees were warned Monday the federal government may take over adult education if local school boards don't meet the need.

Dr. Bert Wales of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, said only two or three school boards in Canada have developed a "total concept of their responsibilities to young people and adults."

Dr. Wales, director of adult education for the Vancouver School Board, was addressing the Canadian School Trustees' Association convention.

RAPID GROWTH
The rapid growth in adult training, he said, may lead to a system of special education outside the scope of local school boards and perhaps in the hands of Ottawa.

In his address, Fred Rowell of Vancouver, president of the national school trustees' organization, asked for more federal help in education research.

He said the B.C. School Trustees' Association, which he also heads, will be asked to spend $100,000 next year on a research program involving new courses, equipment and methods. But he said more money is needed and the federal government should be asked to help.

Dr. J. V. Mills, past chairman of the Toronto Board of Education, said adult education differs from education for youngsters in that it is for the immediate present, while education for youth is "planned for the indeterminate future."

"It is rather startling," he added, "that outside of Ontario and British Columbia most departments of education don't allow their school boards any say in adult education. You must insist on getting your rights."

Nature wouldn't replant this timberland for at least 5 years.

Our foresters already have.

It takes Nature five years or more to reseed many forest areas after they have been logged. But in the timberlands we manage, trained foresters start planting almost on the heels of departing loggers. We have other ways of nudging Nature, too. Careful spacing of new plantings is one example. Selective thinning of trees for a healthier crop is another. As a result of these and other forestry measures, the timber crop will be ready for harvesting about ten years earlier than "natural" forests. And they'll eventually yield as much as 40% more wood per acre. In your great-grandchildren's world, where forest products will be more important than ever — that's going to make a fine legacy.

Gordon Whan came in as a substitute in the first of this season's district button matches, but he stole the show in Cowichan's 3-2 victory over Gorge Vale at Glen Meadows Sunday.

Whan took the place of Mike Kolb as partner to Norm Boden, and the up-island defenders created a surprise by beating the all-pro opposition presented by Bill Wakeham and Laurie Carroll.

What Whan did was to break a tie that existed up to the 11th hole. He won the next three holes with a par, a birdie and another par, a lead from which the Gorge pros never looked like rallying.

At the 12th, Whan was the only player to hit the green with his second. At the long 13th, he was in deep trouble off his drive but pitched out on to the fairway and then parked a No. 4 wood at the back of the green. He sank a good 40-footer for the bird.

Whan was the only one of the four to reach the narrow 14th green in regulation figures and again was the only one to hole out in par. Earlier Carroll had put Gorge Vale one up with a birdie at the first hole, and seven halves followed before Boden nipped in with a birdie at the ninth to square the match.

The Cowichan amateur was two over Glen Meadows par of 72 for the first 18. Boden and Wakeham were approximately two more.

Notable Demands

It was the first time an open competition had been played on the new Saanich peninsula course, and all four players were emphatic that here is a great course in the development stage.

Wakeham and Carroll were playing it for the first time. Using the long tees—7,014 yards, Wakeham was specially impressed with the demanding features of the 10 par-four holes.

"I did not use less than a five iron for my second at any of these holes, and I cannot remember another course in which I had to play so many long iron shots in one round."

Even the four par-five holes present a tough challenge and the one structural complaint I heard was a feeling that a big tree right in front of the dogleg 16th hole—nearly 600 yards—was a little too demanding.

Boden said Glen Meadows would be a valuable addition to the playing facilities of the Victoria district, and there is little doubt that, with another year's work on fairways and greens, it will approach championship quality.

In Victoria recently on a visit to his mother, Roy Chappell, the former assistant pro at Victoria Golf Club, impressed with an improved swing and sharpening of his game since he went to the U.S.

Many Big Names

Roy this winter will again have his Florida job and, provided he can obtain a visa, Vaughan Trapp will go south as his assistant. The two worked together at Victoria a couple of years ago.

With practically all the starters on the U.S. gold trail taking part and with a number of international celebrities as well, including Bruce Devlin and Bob Charles, the 62nd Canadian Open Championship looks like one of the outstanding events of the year.

Opening at Shaughnessy Sept. 29, it will continue with one round a day until the final round Oct. 2.

A number of places apart from those who have received invitations will be filled as a result of a qualifying round at Point Grey Golf Club Monday, Sept. 26. There is a pro-am tournament at Shaughnessy Sept. 28. All that is needed to make the show is fine weather.

An early upset in the Gorge Vale club championship was the first-round defeat of medalist Al McLeod. He fell Sunday to Boyd Brooks, who was approximately par when he won 5-1. Brooks, a six-handicapper at Gorge Vale, is the reigning navy champion.

Still holding the district senior buttons are Peter McIntyre and Bob Anderson of Victoria, who beat Chris Archer and Jack Clark of Gorge Vale on the 15th at Uplands. Next challengers at Victoria are Ed Lovell and Dick Egan of Uplands.

Topping Sells

Warrior from CBS New Yankee Boss

NEW YORK (AP)—Dan Topping resigned as president of New York Yankees Monday, sold his stock to Columbia Broadcasting System and a CBS vice-president was named president and chairman of the board of the team.

Michael Burke, a member of the board of the Yankees since 1964, has been a vice-president of CBS in charge of development since 1962.

With the sale of Topping's 10 per cent of stock in the Yankees, CBS now is sole owner of the team.

PERSONAL REASONS
Topping, chief officer of the Yankees for the last 19 years, said he made his decision to resign for personal reasons.

"I have decided to devote myself of my financial interests in the Yankees and I am selling my stock to CBS."

"My family lives permanently in Florida and I have many other outside activities. I think it is in the best interests of the Yankees as well as for myself to leave at this time."

The Yankees won 15 American League pennants and 10

Burke

World Series under Topping's administration, but finished in the second division last year and currently are in last place.

Burke, a one-time undercover agent, took charge effective immediately.

He offered no immediate comment but scheduled a press conference for today.

Burke joined CBS in 1968. From 1967-62, he served as president of Columbia Broadcasting System (Europe), S.A., with headquarters in London.

TWO MEDALS

During the Second World War he served as an officer with the OSS. He won the Navy Cross for heroism and the Silver Star for gallantry in action behind enemy lines while working with the underground movements in France and Italy.

CBS bought 80 per cent control of the Yankees in August, 1964, from Topping and Del Webb. Webb sold his remaining 10 per cent a year later.

Topping, Webb and Larry MacPhail bought the Yankees from the estate of the late Jacob Ruppert prior to the start of the 1945 season. Topping and Webb bought MacPhail's one-third interest after the 1947 World Series.

Meets Patterson in London

Cooper's Ring Bath Tonight

LONDON (AP)—Henry Cooper, the British heavyweight champion, has mapped out his strategy for tonight's fight against Floyd Patterson.

And it's not going to be much of a secret.

Cooper plans to take a solid bath after the third round—right in front of Patterson and the fans at Wembley Stadium. Cooper's manager, Jim Wickes, unveiled the plan on the eve of the fight both heavyweights hope will get them another shot at Cassius Clay world title.

The bath idea came to Wickes and Cooper as an answer to the British champion's biggest problem—cuts over his eyes.

"It's only when Henry gets hot that he cuts," Wickes explained. "He's all right so long as he's cool. So if Patterson is still on his feet after three rounds, we'll have two extra water buckets and cool Henry down."

Patterson, meanwhile, insisted again that one more loss would mean the end of his career. The former champion's marriage has broken up because he wouldn't quit, but he explained:

"I really want another fight with Clay."

Both Patterson, 32, and a 2-to-1 favorite, and Cooper, 33, have fought and lost to Clay in the last year. Patterson was humiliated in losing a 12-round technical knockout last November. Cooper was stopped on cuts in the sixth round last May.

Horrors—My Hair!

NEW YORK (AP)—Oscar (Ringo) Bonavenna was more concerned Monday about a request from the New York Athletic Commission to cut his long hair than the 2-1 odds against him for his Wednesday night fight with undefeated Joe Frazier at Madison Square Garden.

"The odds are crazy," said the South American heavy-weight king from Argentina. "I break his head. They will have to carry Frazier out. I no worry about him."

"But the commission gets me angry. They want me to cut my hair. I tell them no. I am like Samson. If I cut my hair I will lose my strength."

"I am like one of the Beatles," said Oscar, who got his nickname Ringo because of his admiration for the Beatles.

As a heavyweight, Bonavenna is ranked ninth by Ring magazine on his 21-2 record including 17 knockouts. He is not ranked by the World Boxing Association.

Frazier, the 1964 Olympic champion, has won all 11 of his pro fights by knockouts. The 23-year-old Philadelphian has seen Bonavenna fight and is confident he can beat the South American.

"He's strong as a bull," said Frazier. "But he can be hit. I can hit."

Hockey Union Takes Key Step Forward

CHICAGO (AP)—The merger of the Western and American hockey leagues loomed larger Monday after a meeting of committees of the two circuits.

The committees agreed to recommend the merger to their respective leagues. No time was set, nor were other details announced. An interlocking schedule was dropped for this season, but consideration is being given to a playoff between champions of each league.

Raimy Threatens To Quit Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Free Press says half-back Dave Raimy has stated he won't return to Winnipeg Blue Bombers next season.

Raimy was quoted after Bombers' 11-8 loss to Calgary Saturday, which featured poor offensive blocking and a minus 37-yards rushing effort by Winnipeg backs. Raimy carried the ball 10 times and lost 24 yards.

"I'll get killed behind that line," Raimy was quoted. "I don't know how much more I can take."

Leaders Gain

Hot Riders Bury Esks

EDMONTON (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders invaded Edmonton Monday in a show of power that swamped the Eskimos 49-21 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game before 18,431 fans and gave the eastern leaders a two-game lead over Hamilton.

The Riders, showing no signs of weariness during their second game in 48 hours, waged a diversified attack under the leadership of quarterback Russ Jackson, and handed the Eskies a drubbing on defence.

Eskimos were without fleet halfback Jim Thomas, plagued by a charleyhorse, and went with Lu Bain instead.

INCREASED LEAD

Ottawa led 14-0 after one quarter, increased the lead to 28-7 at the half and held a 35-21 margin after three out of five plays from kickoff to score, as Jackson sent end Ted Watkins into the right flat and hit him with the TD pass. Ten minutes later Rick Black scored unopposed from the two.

Watkins scored two of Ottawa's touchdowns. Others were scored by Black, Ron Stewart, Jim Dillard, Jay Roberts and Jackson.

ADDED SINGLE

For Edmonton, Joe Hernandez, Butch Pressley and Trent Walters scored one touchdown each. Tommy-Joe Coffey converted two and Randy Kerbow added a single.

Sunday, Hugh Campbell caught his 14th touchdown pass of the season as Saskatchewan Roughriders beat Toronto Argonauts 23-7 before 19,338 fans in Regina.

Campbell is two touchdowns past season mark set by Ernie Pits of Winnipeg in 1959.

SCORELESS EARLY

After a scoreless first quarter, Toronto led 1-0 at the half and trailed 9-1 at three quarters.

Campbell, Paul Dudley and George Reed scored Roughriders' majors, all converted by Jack Abendstehen. Remaining Saskatchewan points were scored on a third quarter safety touch.

Toronto's points were made by Dave Mann's single in the second and Bobby Taylor's unconverted in the fourth.

Go Early to NHL

Mystery surrounds the sale by Cleveland Barons of the American League of three players for reasons announced by Barons president Paul Bright as "mostly personal."

Goalie Les Binkley and defencemen Bill Speer and Ted

Laason were sold to the new Pittsburgh entry in the NHL.

For an undisclosed price. "I could have had them until next year, but I don't want them on my club this year," Bright said enigmatically. He did not elaborate.

Bert Yancey fired a 67 for a 72-hole score of 271 to win the $50,000 Portland open golf tournament by three strokes over

Bill Casper. The victory, Yancey's third on the PGA tour trail, was worth $6,800.

Pete Brown, who had been in the lead to fight it since opening day, shot a par 72 for third place. Jack Nicklaus tied with five others in sixth place.

Charles Roswell, former University of Alabama football player, won the U.S. national blind golf tournament for the 15th time in 21 renewals of the tournament.

Kenya policeman Kipchoge Koele failed in his bid for American

Jim Ryun's world record when he won the mile in a one-sided contest in 3:57.4 in Dublin. Ryun's record is 3:51.3.

championship horse trials, announced Canada's international equestrian team. Members are Jim Elder, Aurora, Ont.;

Tom Gayford, Gormley, Ont.; Moffatt Dunlop, Toronto;

Last Game Close Affair

Ontario's Petes Lacrosse Kings

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough's Petes won the Mann Cup Monday night with an 11-8 victory over Vancouver to take the best-of-seven Canadian senior lacrosse championship final four games to one.

Rookie forward John Davis led the winners with four goals and Brian Keegan added two. Roy Wood, Bill Oatstator, Bill Armour, Cy Coombs and Ken Rutman got the others.

Wayne Shuttleworth got two for Vancouver and single goals were scored by Don Boyd, Gord Tiescher, Peter Black, Wayne Pechold, Sid Warlick and Bill Robinson.

BIRTHDAY GAME

Playing-coach Bob Allan of Peterborough participated in his 40th Mann Cup game Monday night and also celebrated his 32nd birthday.

After the game, the more than 2,500 fans gave the Petes a victory parade and players were towed in the shower.

Vancouver started the game quickly, but Peterborough goalie Pat Baker stopped them. Davis struck for two goals to give the Petes a 2-0 lead.

But Black and Warlick, Vancouver's leading scorers, tied the game midway through the first quarter. Davis scored his third goal at 9:58 and Tiescher tied the game 3-3 as the quarter ended.

SLIGHT LEAD

Keegan picked up his two goals in the second period and Shuttleworth replied for Vancouver to give Peterborough a 5-4 lead going into the third quarter.

Shuttleworth scored again at the 2:20 mark of the third on a weird goal that rebounded up the floor from the Vancouver goalmouth.

Baker came out of his net to field the ball, but it bobbed past him and Shuttleworth picked it up and fired it into the open net.

FOUR TO THREE

But the Petes came back and scored four goals to Vancouver's three to hold a 8-7 edge going into the final quarter.

Davis and Oatstator scored for Peterborough at the start of the final period and Pechold ended the game for Vancouver.

The Garden Notes

Bulbs Accoladed

By M. V. CHESTNUT

A most valuable aid to the home gardener in recent years is the work of the specialist flower societies who grow and test all the new varieties as they come out, reporting on which are the best. The American Gladiolus Society, for instance, tries out all the new gladioli in test gardens scattered through the various climate zones in the United States and Canada, and it is part of my job every year to report in this column which varieties have been honored with the jealously-guarded appellation, All-America Gladiolus.

In the same way, the American Rose Society and the National Rose Society of Great Britain grow and appraise new roses, rating them for beauty of form and coloring, freedom from disease and weather resistance. The American Peony Society, the Iris Society, the National Sweet Pea Trials and the Scottish Sweet Pea Trials all perform this same work of testing and rating new varieties, all for the guidance of ordinary backyard gardeners.

It isn't so generally known, though, that Dutch bulbs undergo the same grueling tests and are rated in much the same way. Planted in the world-famous Keukenhof gardens near Lisse, Holland, the flowers are judged and rated by visiting horticultural experts during the spring blossoming period. There is one important difference, however, in the testing and rating of Dutch bulbs and the testing of roses, gladioli and peonies. In the latter case, only new varieties are test-grown and rated. With the bulbs, the International Bulb Selection is not so restricted, and if a hyacinth, a tulip or a daffodil is good enough, it could stay in top place year after year until another better variety comes along to push it off its pedestal of excellence.

Judging is done on the basis of clarity and brightness of color, strength and length of stem, shape and placement of the flower, texture of the petals and the tightness and health of the bulb skin.

The 1965 honor roll of "most admired" Dutch bulb flowers included nine tulips, one hyacinth and one daffodil.

Tops in the Triumph class of tulips this year is Dreaming Maid, strong stemmed and standing almost two feet tall. The flower is violet edged with white.

Winner in the Darwin tulip class is Sunhat, deep golden yellow on long, stout stems. One notable improvement is Sunhat's ability to remain in bloom considerably longer than run-of-the-mill tulips.

A Cottage tulip called Halcyon was chosen as best in its class. Its color is a carmine red with a yellow base and green-edged petals, with long, straight stems and oval-shaped blooms.

In the Darwin Hybrids, Parade is a blazing scarlet with a black base and a yellow ring. Like most of the offspring of mixed marriages between Darwin and Foster tulips, Parade has exceptionally large flowers.

I have always had a great fondness for the Lily-flowered tulips, for their long, pointed petals bring a singular grace and delicacy to the vase-shaped blooms. This year, a pure white tulip has been chosen as the best representative of the Lily-flowered class. Its name is White Triumphator.

Alexandre Dumas's famous novel The Black Tulip comes to life in this year's top choice in the Parrot class. Black Parrot is not a true black but a very dark purple, with fringed petals.

First among the Greigii Hybrid tulips is Oriental Beauty, with vermillion-red flowers and rich green leaves mottled with purple. Also with attractive mottled foliage is this year's winner in the Kaufmanniana class, Heart's Delight. This water-lily tulip, blooming very early in the season, is carmine red edged in pale rose. In the fabulous Foster's Tulip class, the winner is Red Emperor, with very large flowers in fiery red and with a high gloss to the petals.

This year's most-favored hyacinth is La Victoire, making a strong, stout spike of crimson-rose florets, each one with a silver center.

The one daffodil chosen for 1966 honors is Reticent, making an exceptionally large trumpet flower in deep, golden yellow and with flat, pointed petals.

ART BUCHWALD Fills White House Vacancy

The Resident Intellectual

WASHINGTON—The resignation of Professor Eric Goldman as the White House intellectual-in-residence produced a series of charges and countercharges as to President Johnson's attitude toward the academic community.

The administration is so sensitive to criticism in regard to intellectuals that an immediate nationwide search was ordered for Professor Goldman's replacement.

One of the candidates called in was Professor Heinrich Applebaum of West Shortage Teachers College. The interview went something like this:

"Now Professor Applebaum," a White House aide said, "this is probably the most important job in the entire administration. President Johnson wants to keep a running dialogue going between himself and the country's intellectuals, and you will be the liaison between the great society and the educated masses."

"That's very interesting. What do I do?"

"Let me show you your office. It's located in the east wing of the White House because that puts you closer to Yale, Harvard and Princeton than the west wing."

"You people think of everything," Professor Applebaum said in admiration.

They walked into a spacious office. It was bare except for a desk, a chair, a typewriter and two telephones, one black and one red.

"What are the phones for?" Applebaum asked.

"The black one is an outside line. If an intellectual calls, your job is to answer it."

"What do I say?" Applebaum wanted to know.

"Just say that you're President Johnson's resident intellectual."

"What should I talk about?"

"I don't know. Whatever intellectuals talk about—Spinoza, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Norman Mailer? Anything that strikes you."

"That doesn't seem like too much to do," Applebaum said.

"That's only part of your duties. You have many other important responsibilities. For example, if a secretary in the White House can't spell a word, she will call you."

"That's a little more like it," Applebaum said.

"You also will help Mrs. Johnson in her beautification program."

"How?"

"As you know, when you plant a tree, it's very hard to break ground, particularly in the winter. So your job is to loosen up the earth to make it easier for the First Lady."

"You need an intellectual for that?"

"Everyone in the White House has to double up."

"Okay. By the way, what's the red phone for?"

"That's your direct line to the President."

"But the wire isn't connected."

"Nobody but you will know that."

"Is there anything else?"

"Once in a while you'll be called on to help with Pat Nugent's homework, but it won't be too often."

"It sounds like a pretty good job," Applebaum said. "I wonder why Goldman quit."

The professor sat down at the desk and began typing. "What are you doing?" the White House aide demanded.

"I'm starting my book about my life in the Johnson administration."

The aide ripped the paper out of the typewriter. "Nobody said you had the job yet. There are several candidates in the running."

Applebaum put another sheet in the typewriter. "It doesn't make any difference. I've got enough information already."

Words in Storage

SYDNEY
HARRIS

Consider the torture of a writer, he early in life equips himself with as many tools as he can—more than he will ever possibly use—for a conscientious craftsman wants to be ready for any emergency.

Like most writers, there are thousands of words I have stocked away in my storeroom, which he there gathering dust over the years.

A professional writer is in something of the same fix. In order to observe the virtues of clarity and simplicity, he generally foregoes the use of any unusual or exotic words. Only a poet or a professor is permitted a certain amount of verbal obscurity.

Since words are the tools of a painter who was forced to use only the primary colors—nothing but red, yellow and blue—in all his work, the poet must be ready for any emergency.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Mama Mia Frankie's Plan

Didn't Frank Sinatra sign a deal for six pictures, all to be made in England? He aims to use that penthouse in Grosvenor Square, for the next 50 years, or Mia and their hoped-for children will. It's like this. Sinatra as you know does not like his wife to work. Well, if they have lots of children she will be too busy with them to remember her career.

George Segal and Nancy Kwan make their Fifth Coin film for Ray Stark and Seven Arts in the fascinating port of Hong Kong. Many letters from Bond fans begging me to ask Sean Connery to reconsider his decision to abandon 007. If the producers come up with the Bank of England, I'm sure he will.

The Ed Begleys took two-year-old Maureen Kathleen with them to Dublin where Ed stars in Egan's Gail at the Dublin play festival. Young Miss Begley has already logged 75,000 miles in the air. She regards a plane as her own special cradle. Ed was discussing Jumbo and the Paycock which led off the festival.

"I made a flight to see Peter O'Toole and Jack McGowan. It wasn't exactly right for O'Toole, but McGowan was brilliant. What a scene thief, take Mickey Rooney, Baby Le Roy, W. C. Fields, Rita Hayworth, McGowan beats the lot." Ed, who won an Oscar for Summer and Smoke, isn't too bad himself.

In The Day the Fish Came Out, Candice Bergen wears a blue plastic necklace that can be used for bra cups when not in action around her throat. We've had about everything lately in the way of costume jewelry, but bra cups! The era for Candy's film for Michael Cacoyannis is 1972; it's a comedy, and that is all the director has revealed to his cast which includes Tom Courtenay and Sam Wanamaker.

The picture is being filmed in Greece, and Miss Bergen saw Greta Garbo last week at the Athens Hilton. "It reminded me," writes the pretty young actress, "that my father (Edgar—she knew the day would come when he would be known merely as Candy's father) disguised himself as a Swedish waiter and served a complete supper to Garbo before she recognized him."

The Russians said nyet to Sir Alec Guinness playing Tolstoy in the Russian-American film of the famed composer. The role goes to their own Innokenti Smoktunov-sky. But they are mad keen to have Vivien Leigh as Madame von Meck, the mystery woman who loved Tolstoy but never met him. Dmitri Tolkina is the brave man who is planning to produce the film next January in Moscow.

If you are terribly keen to look at the church where Grace Kelly married Prince Rainier in Monaco, see Kaleidoscope. A great deal of the picture was filmed in the tiny principality.

Naturally, the Melina Mercouri-Jules Dassin Broadway musical version of Never On Sunday will have 18 scenes. It's their lucky number. They do everything important on the 18th, meeting, marriage, everything. Melina was getting tips and advice from Vivien Leigh who has been visiting the Cynus Sulbergers on the island of Spetsai, Greece. Vivien will be doing her show, Come Live With Me on Broadway at the same time as Melina will be rehearsing Never On Sunday.

Actress-singer Choo Choo Collins bought the rights to The Store Detective in which she will play a bungling glamour girl detective who always spots the thief, usually recovers the merchandise, but never captures the culprit.

First Record Ready

Jubilation Singers, one of most popular groups to play old Secret coffee house in Victoria, came back for quick visit Sunday and Monday. They were making arrangements for distribution of their first record. Len Mason sings and plays, singer Doris Lavoie holds recording. Record, featuring photograph of couple taken in scenic Squamish area, includes guitarist Bill Holstine, from Calgary. Len is from Nova Scotia. Doris is a Cree from Manitoba, who says her ancestors threw rocks at Mayflower. —(Kinsman)

His Mind Like Camera

VANCOUVER — The photographic memory of Vancouver police constable Donald Lennon has elicited again.

Waiting to cash his pay cheque in a bank he recognized a man cashing bond coupons. But the man fled before Lennon could warn the bank staff the coupons might be stolen.

A check on the $199 in coupons showed they were lost from a $200,000 1962 break-in and robbery in a New Westminster real estate and insurance firm.

Police have arrested a man since, and Geoffrey Wing, 27, has been charged with possessing stolen securities.

Constable Lennon is credited with more than 100 arrests.

GRENADA, Miss. (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., winner of the Nobel Peace Prize for his advocacy of non-violence in the civil rights struggle, arrived Monday night in this recently troubled north Mississippi city.

King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference has been active here and the Negro leader said it "is going all out to achieve economic power."

He immediately went to the site of a supermarket being built by Negroes and said it "is a most significant move for this community."

"We are going to build more businesses in the Negro community. This will give the kind of economic power to the Negro community of Grenada that it needs."

Earlier in the day 169 Negro pupils quietly began their second week of integrated classes at two Grenada schools on Mississippi highway patrol troopers maintained a close watch.

The peaceful scene contrasted with opening-day classes a week ago when angry white adults beat Negro children with axe handles, chains and lead pipes. There were no white crowds Monday.

Bad Bill Passed To Police

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — An unknown man or woman has paid a parking ticket fine here with counterfeit money—and apparently collected $15 profit on the deal.

Court officials, who discovered a $20 counterfeit bill among their takings, said as the normal fine was $5, they presumed they had paid out $15 change to someone.

Secret service men said the money bill showed James president Andrew Jackson with a crooked smile instead of his normal tight-lipped expression.

At Ottawa

Brannan Fugitive Arrested

OTTAWA (CP)—Colin Baxter McKenzie, 17, who escaped Sept. 13 from the British Columbia Brannan Lake industrial school, appeared in magistrate's court here Monday on two charges of breaking, entering and theft.

Remanded until Sept. 26 without plea, McKenzie also faces one charge of breaking and entering and two for attempted break-ins.

The breaking, theft and attempted break-ins took place between Sept. 7 and 17, when police arrested a man caught breaking into an Ottawa home.

Police said McKenzie escaped from the industrial school by overpowering a guard. He had made his way to Ottawa on buses and by hitchhiking.

Fraser Link Still Far Off

A new $20,000,000 bridge across the Fraser River at Mission is still "four or five years away," a Mission City delegation was told Monday by Highway Minister Gagliardi.

The proposed bridge would span the 2,000-foot width of the Fraser River with a four-lane, 60-mile an hour bridge connecting the north shore highways with the Trans-Canada Highway and Valley centres replacing a one-lane, steel and wooden structure.

Park Savers Kill 'Goose'

VANCOUVER (CP) — People who oppose mining in provincial parks in British Columbia are "killing the goose that lays the golden egg," geologist Dr. Chris Riley said Monday.

In addition to a host of in-herent problems, the mining industry must also cope with "man-made provincial problems, one of which is the growing tendency to restrict more and more the areas of B.C. favorable to mineral research."

He said one bodies worth vast sums might be located in small areas of the 6,000,000 acres of class B provincial parks in B.C.

But provincial regulations "are becoming so restrictive and harassing as to make it scarcely worth the search," he told a board of trade luncheon.

The noted Canadian geologist said forestry, mining and other such industries make the population more prosperous and enable better roads to be built.

BIG TOWN. Dr. Riley also said Vancouver now is taking over from Toronto as the place for mining exploration firms to seek money and where the fast buck is made.

"I doubt if Bay Street could have ever equalled the record of B.C. with some 300 mineral exploration companies incorporated since the beginning of 1966 and apparently all financed into the bargain."

'Coney Island' Problem

Chamber Blamed
For Flop
Of Tourist EffortBy A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

An effort to knock out the honky-tonk, Coney Island type of thing which is a drawback to the city was shot down in flames by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Ald. Clyde Savage charged Monday.

'Luckiest
People
Alive'

Three people missed death by inches when a 26-foot launch exploded sending the forklift into the air at Shoal Harbor Sunday.

Mechanic John Grieve, 25, his mother, Mrs. Carita Grieve, 55, 7680 East Saanich and fiance, Shirley Webster, 1938 Cultra Saanichton, were pelted by the flying bridge and windshield after the explosion. Fire broke out seconds later.

OVER SIDE

Mr. Grieve lost no time abandoning ship. He threw his mother over the side and then his non-swimming fiance then dived in himself and kept his fiance on the surface by treading water.

"I don't know what could have caused it," said Mr. Grieve Monday night. The trio was starting on a fishing trip and had just cleared the breakwater at Van Isle Marina when the foredeck of the 38,000 K Gazi II went up in the air.

BILGE DRY

Mr. Grieve said he had checked the bilge and it was perfectly dry and there was no sign of gas. He said since he bought the boat a week ago all the port holes and hatches were left open to air out the craft.

The trio floated around for five minutes before being picked up by William Elgin.

NO SMOKING

Mr. Grieve said there was no one smoking and there were no fumes.

The gutted craft was towed ashore and beached. It was fully covered by insurance.

"We must be the luckiest people alive," said Mr. Grieve. "God knows how we escaped being hit by the flying woodwork. The whole thing just blew sky high."

Missionaries
On Their Way

A farewell meeting will be held for two young African missionaries in the Gosworth Road Community Church at 7:30 p.m. today. The two missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Dickens, will show films on African Inland Missions.

Cabinet Approves
University Loans

The University of Victoria and University of British Columbia were given the go-ahead Monday by the provincial cabinet, to borrow $11,550,000 for construction of dormitories.

A cabinet order gave approval for University of Victoria to borrow up to $2,200,000 from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

This money, along with

He referred to the move by the mayor and members of city council to weld the tourist division of the chamber with the Victoria Visitors Bureau and generally co-ordinate the whole tourist industry in the Greater Victoria community.

"However, to our surprise, the chamber of commerce at that time would not accept in principle the advantages of integration with the tourist bureau and shot the whole program down in flames," Ald. Savage said.

FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

He understood, he added, some of the reasons for the chamber's apprehension. The bureau was having financial difficulties and there were other problems. But all these could have been sorted out and resolved if the chamber had agreed in principle.

This the chamber did not do and the opportunity to form an integrated, central, policy-making force which could have eliminated the "tourist-trap" and Coney Island measures" was lost.

BRIGHT SIDE

There was a bright side to the picture, however, Ald. Savage admitted.

The speech of the recently retired president of the chamber, Richard Bower, in which he urged a study in depth of the whole tourist industry and suggested, by implication, the formation of a central body armed with the power to control, was heartening, Ald. Savage said.

NEW HOPE

"I was most pleased and encouraged by the remarks of Mr. Bower," the alderman said. "It gives new hope that some sort of liaison or integration could take place. We badly need a central, solid, tourist industry control group in this city and the mayor and council are working toward this end."

In the same breath Ald. Savage took a walk-up at merchants in this city who are making money from the tourist industry without contributing anything to its promotion.

MERCHANT APATHY

"I just can't understand the apathy and lack of support to the visitors' bureau from these people who are doing so well out of the tourists. We all know what a serious loss it would be to the economy of the city if the industry didn't exist."

Ald. Savage, chairman of the city council convention centre committee and its principal spokesman on matters related to the tourist industry, asked for the support of the business community in general and the chamber of commerce in particular to make this municipality the leading convention centre in the Pacific Northwest.

Yellow Sheet on Campus

Hatemonsters Spreading
Anti-Jewish Literature

By WILLIAM THOMAS

Hate literature aimed at Jews was distributed on the University of Victoria campus Monday. Two students, George Heyd and Russell Savage, saved a particularly virulent sample which urges students to take "a quick look at any university calendar which will show many obviously Jewish names. In also every case these are the men who are spreading their communist ideas at our expense."

The yellow printed sheet continues: "Students should be careful to report such professors to their Christian parents and parents should attend some of their children's classes in order to see how the Jewish-Communists spread their filth."

The yellow sheet, published by the Christian Committee for Democracy and Freedom, goes on to take a swat at the hit movie Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, saying the film "is part of the international Jewish-Communist conspiracy. The film attacks one of our most sacred institutions—marriage."

PLAY ALLEUDD

The hate bulletin says the play's author Edward Albee is "probably being paid by Moscow, Peking or Tel-Aviv to write such shocking propaganda."

ON LANDSDOWNE

The pamphlets found by the students were on the Lansdowne Campus outside the Young Building.

The sheet entitled Truth and duplicated on bright yellow paper runs through the standard fallacies and half-truths including quotations from U.S. Nazi leader Lincoln Rockwell.

Both Mr. Russell and Mr. Savage said they intend to see if they can find who is distributing this vicious material.

Henderson Park Complex

Oak Bay Approves
Recreation Plans

By JIM BRAHAN

Development of a five-year plan for an Oak Bay municipal recreation complex was given the green light by council Monday night.

Council unanimously agreed that the recreation needs of the community now require the development of the designated Henderson Park for recreational purposes.

The question will be put to the electorate early in 1967 in the form of a referendum which will give approval for council to borrow the capital required to implement the five-year plan.

22 ACRES

Henderson Park will comprise some 22 acres along Cedar Hill Cross Road, east of Henderson and south of the University of Victoria.

The final development of the proposed plan will include ice skating and hockey, an enclosed swimming pool and possibly curling.

Council also proposed that the referendum seek approval for suitable accommodation for senior citizens' activities as well as arts and crafts for all ages.

Thieves Steal
$485 in Jewels

A weekend break-in netted a thief $485 in jewellery and a set of binoculars.

Police found a basement door had been forced at the home of Mrs. Margaret Eastick, 1637 Oak Bay Avenue, and rings, locket chains and a set of binoculars had been taken.

NOT EXPECTED

This outstanding debt will be materially reduced during the next five-year period, therefore it is not expected to affect the mill rate to any great extent, according to council.

A total breakdown of the project's financial needs will be placed before the voters prior to the referendum.

Southern Vancouver nurserymen charged Monday night that the federal department of agriculture is stirring up a golden nematode scare that could kill their business.

In a strongly-worded statement the Lower Vancouver Island Nurserymen's Association and Allied Trades attacked an advertisement sponsored by the department in last week-end's newspapers.

The display advertisement warned about the dangers of transporting plant parts off the island, quarantined since the golden nematode was found in Saanich more than a year ago.

"What is the government trying to do?" asked the nursery-

Car Victim
Succumbs

Victim of a traffic accident Friday, Mrs. Nancie Wick, 68, of 1533 Quadra, died Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

She was the city's third traffic fatality this year.

Mrs. Wick was knocked down as she crossed Blanshard at Figgard.

Police said the driver of the car was Gary Anderson, of HMCS Maskenzie.

An inquest has been called for 7:30 Wednesday at Thomson and Irving Funeral Chapel.

Naden Society
Opens Practice

Naden Amateur Concert Society is starting rehearsals for Gilbert and Sullivan's Pirates of Penzance at the bandhouse Wednesday and Thursday.

It was suggested that this part of the program would probably be more practical in a separate location and the selection of a site will be studied.

A committee chaired by Coun. F. W. Hawes has accumulated information on existing facilities in other locations, which might be included in the ultimate plan.

Meetings will be held with the Oak Bay recreation commission and interested organizations in the municipality to determine which facilities will be most desirable and the priority in which they will be developed.

Council noted that the municipality has clear title to the property which was purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company in 1961 and therefore no money will be required for land acquisition.

It will also be able to make available certain funds from capital reserve to go towards cost of construction.

Council claimed the municipality to be in an exceedingly sound financial position as far as the existing direct debt is concerned.

Police are seeking Vernon Umphrey, 33, 520 Huxley, charged with the rape Thursday of a 20-year-old woman in a car parked near the Songhees Indian reserve.

The woman complained she and her companion were on Admirals Road at the time of the incident.

Umphrey was described by police as being six feet tall, weighing 190 pounds, and with blue eyes and brown hair.

Tragedies
Forecast

Small boats putting to sea in choppy waters have brought an RCMP forecast of a boating tragedy.

The warning came after four small boats flipped over in the rough weather around Sooke Sunday. Everyone was rescued and there were no injuries.

Terming the small boats "hushhubs" the RCMP pointed out that many craft using Sooke waters are too small and owners are in danger of getting drowned.

Nurserymen Fight Scare
Caused by Nematode Ads

"Are they trying to put us out of business?"

"The nematode scare has caused all nursery stock from here to be suspect in spite of the fact that all commercial nursery stock in this area is moving with government approval."

The statement said federal Agriculture Minister Greene and officials of his department stated they expected the quarantine would be lifted in all areas, except those with known nematode infestation, by June 1 this year.

"We challenge the department of agriculture to prove that the areas outside of this original field are infested."

"Despite further representations, this has not been done. The reasons given are that further testing is necessary."

"It now is more than a year since the testing was started and on practically all nurseries it has ceased."

Some nurserymen, complained that stock are being detained in this area without any proof that they are infected.

"We challenge the department of agriculture to prove that the areas outside of this original field are infested."

Salvage of Humans Success Story of Man

By JOHN MATTERS

When the John Howard Society opened a file on a Victoria man 15 years ago he was considered next to hopeless — a drunk, thief and bad cheque artist.

Today, that file weighs eight pounds, contains possibly 50,000 words in innumerable reports and the former thug has an excellent job, happy family and good home here.

George Warnock, executive director of the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island, Monday estimated that only three or four per cent of the people in jails today are unrepentable criminals.

About 30 per cent have hard-rock problems which they need help in solving and the remainder of the prison population could actually repair themselves.

Those statistics represent a tremendous fund of salvageable humanity — people who can be extracted from the subcultures of sex perversion, theft and so on and brought into the normal swing of things.

The John Howard Society last year counselled 77 such persons on Vancouver Island on a budget which received two-thirds of its money from Community Chest funds.

"And this has to be done, if they still are on parole, while providing protection to the public."

The apprehensive ex-convict fears people will notice him for his background and he easily loses confidence.

"We tell them they must be like parliamentarians," said Mr. Warnock. "Not only must they be tops but they must appear to be tops."

"Three years ago I had a guy you would have written off as a no-good hoodlum, a bum. Last week I found out that, in addition to his plans to get married and settle down, he's taking a course that will give him a good job."

"The tests he took for the course showed he had the ability of a university student. This is the reward for our efforts."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: When I first started to read your column, I resented it when you told people to get psychiatric help. It seemed to me you were out of your depth. How could YOU know who needed psychiatric help? I now realize that I resented it because I secretly feared I needed psychiatric help myself and I hated to face the truth.

Well, finally I had to make a choice, either subject myself to the couch or to continue to crawl through life, hating every day — miserable, depressed and ending up an alcoholic, a hop-head or a suicide.

I was fortunate. I found the right psychiatrist on the first try. (Some of my friends were less fortunate.) I now am looking forward to a new life.

Therapy can be agony because it brings one face to face with himself, and this can be devastating and painful experience. But it opens all sorts of doors, destroys needless fears and can be a well-spring of strength and hope.

Keep telling people to get psychiatric help, Ann, even though a lot of them don't want to hear it. — VICTORY IN SIGHT

Dear Vic: Your letter couldn't have come at a better time. Please read on:

Dear Ann Landers: I am fed up with your ridiculous column. When you can't come up with an answer you tell people to see a psychiatrist. Do you think you are the only person in the world who knows about psychiatry?

I take violent exception to your advice to "Picket Fence," the woman whose husband wanted her to feed the kids in the kitchen before he got home. He said he could not enjoy dinner with the kids and that they gave him indigestion. You told her that a father who can't stand the sound and sight of his children at the dinner table should see a psychiatrist. And then you said something equally dumb — that this father had better learn how to stand his kids now or they wouldn't be able to stand him when they are older.

YOU are the one who needs to see a psychiatrist. How many two and three-year-olds have YOU had dinner with lately? If a husband wants to enjoy a peaceful meal with his wife, why should he be subjected to yelling, hitting, spilling and jabber, jabber, jabber?

Why didn't you tell the wife to train her children in the kitchen? When they can conduct themselves properly they should then be brought into the dining room to eat with Dad. — FORMER READER

Dear Former: Are you talking about monkeys or children? Your suggestion that they be trained in the kitchen makes me wonder:

In most families, the dinner hour is the only time the family gets together to share a common activity. Children need not hit each other or yell and jabber at the table. There is no better opportunity to teach manners, co-operation, and civilized conversational habits.

than in the dining room. This is also the idea time for a father to exert a paternal, directive influence on his children.

Feeding kids in the kitchen and keeping them out of sight when Daddy comes home may add a Hollywood touch to marriage but it does less than nothing for father-children relationships which has hit a new low in this age of affluence.

Mr. and Mrs. Burke Honeymoon in East

Following a honeymoon trip to Mrs. J. Burke of Ottawa are Ottawa and Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Brian Burke are making their home at 820 Cook Street, Victoria.

The bride, the former Helen Denise McDonald is the daughter of Mrs. C. McDonald, Fort Street, and the late Lt. Cmdr. Charles McDonald. Mr. and

The bride chose an empire style gown of tulle silk fashioned with controlled skirt featuring appliques of Venetian lace. Lace motifs also highlighted the elbow length sleeves and the Watteau train. A rosette headpiece held her finger tip veil and she carried gardenias and stephanotis with ivy.

Miss Marilyn McDonald, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. She chose a gown of Dior blue nylon over taffeta styled with bell shaped skirt and train from the back waist. She wore a matching floral headpiece and carried white gladiolus and feathered carnations.

Mr. George Brown was best man and Mr. Rod Myer and Mr. David Rigg ushered guests. The home of Dr. P. K. Johnston was decorated by Mrs. Karl Rieche for the reception. The toast was proposed by the bride's godfather, Lt. Cmdr. R. P. Mylrea and the cake was cut with the bride's father's sword. For travelling the new Mrs. Burke chose a beige silk brocade dress and coat ensemble, silk velvet turban and gardenias corsage.

Out of town guests included Mrs. D. McNaught, Toronto; Miss Gwen McGregor, Miss Colleen Oakie, Miss Brenda Burke, Mr. and Mrs. R. Sonley, Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. David Walker, Nanaimo.

Response to Expo '67 Terrific Says Hostess

By TRUDY KEMP

Expo '67 can't help but be an outstanding success!

Especially if the enthusiasm shown by those already working for Canada's World Fair rubs off on their fellow countrymen.

Such enthusiasm for the Centennial event to be held in Montreal next year is spreading across the country according to one of the 11 hostesses touring Canada to publicize Expo '67.

"The response to Expo has been terrific — far more than we expected at this time," said Miss Jean Murin an attractive 34-year-old hostess from Montreal. "There is nothing more encouraging than that."

When asked what she thought about the final outcome of the World Fair she quickly came back with the response:

"We have good organization, a good location and plenty of enthusiasm from Canadians all across the country. I really don't see how we can fail."

A Canadian citizen, Miss Murin was born in Czechoslovakia and now lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murin in Montreal. She is fluent in English and French, as well as German and Slovak and has a good knowledge of Polish, Ukrainian and Serbo-Croat. She is a registered nurse and has also done freelance writing including several non-fiction articles and poetry.

The vibrant young hostess was in Victoria Monday along with a group of Expo officials to help interview would-be-hostesses. Nineteen girls applied from the greater Victoria area and results of the interview will be made known within the next few months.

Among the other members of the team facing the difficult task of choosing some 200 young women from among the 2,000 applications received from all areas across Canada are Mrs. Monique Archambault, chief hostess for the Exhibition, Mrs. J. Poulin, assistant to Mrs.

Archambault; Mr. Roger Landry, Mr. P. Fletiot, Mr. Phil Gauthier, Mr. A. Tremblay, Miss Yvonne Morissette and Mr. R. H. Black, all from Expo's head office. The team is now in Vancouver and moves on to Kelowna and eastward after Sept. 23.

To qualify for 1967's most interesting position successful candidates must be between the ages of 20 to 35 years, preferably single, and a Canadian citizen. They must be bilingual — English and French — and the knowledge of one or more other languages will qualify them for higher salaries.

The hostesses must be able to express themselves clearly, have a good general knowledge of Canada and the Canadian

The chosen candidates will take a special 10-week training course which will include instruction in grooming and deportment, protocol, etiquette, handling of visitors, first aid, complete data about Expo '67. They will also review Canada's history, geography and economy.

During the 151 days of the Exhibition, which opens April 26, the hostesses will be responsible for information kiosks at the Place d'Accueil, the main entrance to Expo, the International Trade Centre and the amusement area, La Ronde. They will be on hand to assist visitors throughout the Exhibition and will escort prominent people and press representatives and act as guides in Expo Theme buildings.

Although the requirements and duties will be quite demanding, Jean Murin is looking forward to Expo '67 with a great deal of enthusiasm.

She feels it will be a wonderful experience for all the girls, who will receive, in the name of their country, visitors from around the world.

"What Canada is doing in its Centennial year is really something and I'm so proud to be part of it," she said.

Toastmistresses Welcome Members

The Arbutus Toastmistress Club room glowed with color as the president, Mrs. W. A. Ludlow, called the first meeting to order. Flags and dolls of all nations set the stage as guests, Mrs. H. M. Butt, Mrs. L. Hammett, Mrs. M. James and Miss Jeannette Heskin were welcomed.

In keeping with the theme of the year, Centennial, toastmistress, Mrs. D. L. Campbell, and speakers, Mrs. E. R. Adair, Mrs. J. Walls and Mrs. H. Brews spoke on subjects relating to "Birth of a Nation." Mrs. R. S. Butt gave an interesting lesson on "Revision and Amendment of Bylaws."

Other members taking part in the program were Mrs. H. J.

Wende, Mrs. G. H. Love, Mrs. H. L. Clarkson, Mrs. G. L. Cook, Miss Juanita Davis, Mrs. C. Dowling, Mrs. S. McCulloch, Mrs. D. E. Pite, Mrs. A. M. Reid, Mrs. P. Small, Mrs. R. Hogarth and Mrs. H. Winston.

ANNUAL MEETING
Annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Veterans' Hospital will be held at 2 p.m., Oct. 3, in the hospital. Tea will be served in the lounge at the social hour following the meeting.

Acid Indigestion? Take Cow Brand

Whenever acid indigestion strikes, you can get quick relief by taking a 1/2 teaspoon of Cow Brand Baking Soda in half a glass of water. Mild, soothing, it helps neutralize excess acid and gives quick comfort for an upset stomach. Keep a package in your medicine cabinet — ready for use day or night.

Go ahead! Choose a savings goal.
Toronto-Dominion will match it with Life Insurance!

Assured savings plan

Pick yourself a five year savings goal. It could be as little as $600, or as much as $3,000. (Your convenient monthly deposit can range from $10 to $50.) Whatever savings goal you set for yourself, that's the amount of life insurance protection your family has for five years from the minute you make the first deposit in your Toronto-Dominion Assured Savings Plan. In addition to all deposits made, plus the bonus your savings have earned. Whether you're saving for your children's education, for the down payment on a new home, for a retirement nest egg... or even if you don't have a special objective in mind, ask your Toronto-Dominion Manager about the Go-Ahead way of saving...the Assured Savings Plan.

Great Go-Ahead idea from

Ice Reason for Lack Of Native Mammals

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Thousands of years ago, a bridge of ice slowly crumbled under the creeping warmth of a new geophysical age and out short the natural migration of animals to the island of Newfoundland.

W. B. Whiffen, extension biologist with the Newfoundland department of mines, agriculture and resources, says only 14 mammalian species flourished on the island's rocky terrain, although several species have been successfully introduced since then.

The province has fewer native wild animals than any of her sister provinces, but Whiffen says "we take more interest in the use, preservation and harvesting of our game and feel a greater association with nature than most people."

Possibly it's because of the shortage of species, the biologist suggests.

But why this dearth of native mammals?

"Thousands of years ago, insular Newfoundland was covered by a glacial ice mass which made the existence of plant and animal life impossible," Whiffen says.

CROSSED BRIDGE

A map of Newfoundland shows most major drainage systems are arranged in a northeast-southwest direction, the most striking example being found in the Avalon peninsula on the province's east coast.

Moreover, striated rocks and rocky barrens denuded of soil testify to the prehistoric movements of huge ice sheets.

"In addition to robbing sections of soil, the ice also provided a bridge to the mainland, allowing the passage of animals to the island. Once the ice recession was in progress, plant life gained a foothold and this paved the way for animal colonization."

Some species adapted to the new environment and found it adequate for breeding and survival. Others could not survive and disappeared.

Once the ice bridge disappeared, immigration probably ceased, Whiffen says, and even among the hardest of surviving animals, hazards natural and otherwise took their toll.

The wolf population of Newfoundland has proved too meagre for some native species, it has been a nourishing haven for several imported creatures.

The first pair of moose were released near Gander Bay in 1898 and one year later two more pairs were introduced to the forested region around Howley. Today, an estimated 40,000 moose roam the province and Whiffen says that "unless present forest conditions change to any great extent, the current moose population is probably the maximum that can be supported without damaging results."

Another species that has taken a healthy liking to its adopted home is the snowshoe or varying hare. Like the moose, the snowshoe hare provides many rural families with supplies of fresh meat.

The Newfoundland government recently added a touch of the pioneer west to its hunting preserves with the introduction of buffalo to Brunette Island off the province's south coast.

The buffalo, originally expected to be a major attraction to resident and non-resident hunters, "is a grazer and can make use of the many miles of the island's grassy terrain."

But "the presence of buffaloes on Brunette is solely an experiment and at present hopes for its success are shrouded in doubt." A large percentage of the original number imported to the island has failed to survive.

U Thant Stays at Post; Indonesia Wants Back In

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Secretary-General U Thant, postponing his retirement deadline, said Monday he is ready to carry on in the top United Nations job until Dec. 31 if member countries haven't found a successor when his term ends Nov. 3.

While telling a news conference he would consider staying on after Nov. 3, he declined to say whether he would agree to keep his post after Dec. 31.

'GLOTTIFIED CLERK'

Thant let it be known he doesn't think the job is all it's cracked up to be, however. Some member countries, which remained nameless, look upon the secretary-general as "a glorified clerk" and prevent him from taking political and diplomatic initiatives as broad as those the job should permit.

Meanwhile, Indonesia, only country ever to leave the United Nations, announced it will rejoin the world body today. All Indonesia needs to do is have a representative take its seat and this duty is expected to be fulfilled by Lamberhan Palar, its ambassador to the United States.

The return of Indonesia and the admission of Guyana, the former colony of British Guiana in South America, at today's meeting will boost UN membership to 121 countries.

Indonesia left March 1, 1965, because President Sukarno was engaged in a policy of hostile confrontation of Malaysia, and Malaysia had just been elected to the Security Council. Sukarno considered Malaysia a British

Borneo Threat Faced

From AP-Reuters

KUALA LUMPUR (CP)—Heading a government warning that armed Communists and political unrest in the Borneo state of Sarawak pose a twin menace to the country, Malaysia's Parliament voted overwhelmingly Monday to amend the national constitution.

The amendment gives the governor of Sarawak powers intended to curb the state's rebellious chief minister, Stephen Kalong Ningkan, and stamp out a political crisis that has rocked that jungle region for almost two weeks.

The government stood firm on its main argument that the Communist threat was armed uprising in the state and that this security threat was aggravated by the political instability caused by the defiance of Ningkan.

Petite Judy, 19 Race Marshal

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP)—Most little girls are crazy about horses, but the attraction usually fades when they discover boys.

Judy MacLean, race marshal at a track outside Ottawa, fell in love with horses at 18 months. If anything, she is even wilder about the ponies at 19 years.

She says the 15-hour days she sometimes puts in at the track don't hamper her social life at all. "You meet a lot of really neat people out here."

Most of them are men. Out of 200 people brushing, harnessing and jogging the 450 horses stabled at the track, only 10 are women. Judy, who has her trainer's licence, says she's never had any opposition from her male competition.

"They just think you're funny."

Barefoot, in shorts and a flowered shirt, Judy looks about 13. A blue-eyed brunette, she seems too small at five feet four inches and 115 pounds to handle half a ton of ornery horse.

But she's been riding since she was a toddler on her grandfather's Nova Scotia farm. Since then she has lived in Edmonton, Summer side, P.E.I., Labrador and Trenton, Ont., with her air force family and it has been horses, horses all the way.

OWNS SPIRITED MARE

"My family don't understand it. They like horses but not the way I do."

She goes out to the track every day, sometimes as early as 8 a.m., to groom and work out the two horses she rides alternately at the head of the race parades. One, a tall black gelding, is rented from a riding school. The other, a delicate bay mare called Dance Me Loose, is Judy's.

"She's kind of goofy," says Judy with a sigh. "It's not that she's stupid, she's just so high-spirited that she doesn't know what to do with herself."

Judy spends the afternoons "sort of messing around" with harness and other horses, and goes to work about 5 p.m. with the first race.

Rependent in black jacket, jodhpurs and hard hat, white shirt and long brown boots, she leads the trotters to the starting gate. Her duties include dealing with ill-mannered starters, recovering runaway horses and controlling traffic around accidents at the track.

ASKED FOR JOB

She suggested her job herself.

"I used to be out here all the time last year working out other people's horses, and they didn't have a marshal. So I thought it would be a nice job for me, and I asked them if I could do it. They said yes."

She gets $50 a week, but she made more last year helping out in the paddocks.

"I can't bet this year, because employees can't, but it's probably just as well. The most I ever won was $11 anyway."

A Grade 13 graduate last June, Judy wants to go to an American school for race track officials next fall. "I want to be a race secretary, but I'd also like to train and show horses."

Right now she's shaping up an orphan yearling she bought as a new-born for $35.

"My girl friend and I raised him on skim milk and pabulum. It cost us a fortune but it was worth it. He's still ticking and I simply adore him."

Wheelchair Sportsman Lands 19-Pound Coho

A 19-pound coho from Beecher Bay waters has placed wheelchair angler Ron Houlihan, 1518 Fell Street, in the King Fisherman coho division lead.

He ousted eight-year-old Robbie Raincock who had held the lead with a 17.4-pounder from Sooke waters.

IN LINE

Mr. Houlihan is a Colonist subscriber and is in line for both the King Fisherman trophy and the Viking outboard motor donated by T. Eaton Co. for the biggest coho caught by a subscriber.

He lost his leg three years ago in an explosion aboard the Estevan, but he still fishes as often as he can.

MONDAY MORNING

He was fishing Monday morning off Beecher Head with partner Bob Griffiths, 945 Devonshire, when the big one took a pinkish Henry Smith Special spoon and then put up a terrific in and out of the water battle before it was brought to net.

It took about 20 minutes to land.

Paul Cocco won Sunday's Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association membership derby with a 38.6-pound spring (chinko) from Misery Bay, western and Mark Woodard won the coho class with a 7.12-pounder.

OTHER WINNERS

Other winners in spring division: Denny Heinke, 12 pounds; Alf Joyce, 4 pounds; Al Wright, 3.14 pounds; Tuffy Wakeford, 3.3; Tony Ross, 3.1.

Other coho winners: Bob Hogan, 7.11; Ted Perkins, 6.6; R. Drayton, 6.2; E. Blewett, 6.0; J. Motavieh, 5.1; Mrs. Fern Caldwell, 4.5; Russell Der, 4.0; and Dave Chif, 3.0.

ENTERTAIN BLIND

Capital City Yacht Club members entertained blind fishermen Saturday for the annual CNIB derby which was won by T. W. (Bill) Long, 3155 Westcan, with a three pound jackspring. Cornelius Cook was second with a two-pounder and W. A. Tymchuk, third with a 1 pounder.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and easily relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months. This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

David took 17 years of love from his parents, first class honours from his school and $8,000 from your pockets.

Then he left.

David left for good. Brilliant high school student dies in car crash said the headline. All that love, all that brilliance, all that money; all gone for nothing. Automobile accidents kill more young Canadians than anything. More than disease; more than all other accidents put together. It costs some $8,000 in tax money just to prepare a student for university. A thorough high school driver training program costs $40 per student, and takes 50 hours of instruction. Small costs against the losses.

The automobile insurance industry promotes young driver training. Bursaries, text books and free instruction are given to high school teachers. They in turn teach the students. The industry also awards cash discounts on auto insurance premiums to students who pass the course. Driver training isn't a frill. School boards with experience know it's a proven method of reducing accidents. Urge and back high school driver training in your community. Keep the Davids with us.

Postal workers applaud 30 per cent demand

Ottawa Refuses Raise

Postmen Told 'No'

OTTAWA (CP) — A demand by the Letter Carriers Union of Canada for a 39 per cent pay increase by Nov. 15 just won't be met, Revenue Minister Benson said Monday.

The minister, commenting in an interview, said there was a possibility of an interim increase for post office employees this fall but the main review of their salaries would take five or six months to complete.

MONTHS REQUIRED

Roger Decarie, president of the 9,000-member Letter Carriers' Union, told a meeting attended by some 2,000 Ontario letter carriers in Toronto Sunday, a nationwide strike was likely to follow if the 39-per-cent increase wasn't forthcoming by Nov. 15.

Postal employees are included in the civil service pay grouping that comes under review Oct. 1. Any increases will be retroactive to that date, but months are required for union-government pay consultations and collection of pay data before the government announces such decisions.

However, when salaries obviously lagged in some groupings in the past, the government has granted interim adjustments, then added to them when the pay review was completed.

DOLLAR PER HOUR

Letter carriers seek a flat $1-an-hour increase, which would raise their starting pay to $6,000 from $4,200 yearly—a jump of nearly 45 per cent. However, at higher salary levels the percentage increase would be less, leading to an over-all increase of about 39 per cent.

Mr. Decarie told LCU members in Toronto a strike would get solid support from other unions.

"If there is a strike it won't be in two or three cities. It will be from St. John's Nfld. to Vancouver."

"If we don't accept a government offer, the post offices will be closed down tight before Christmas and we'll wait for the courts to take over."

The union also wants collective bargaining rights, which Mr. Decarie said would be denied them by a bill which recently passed second reading in the Commons.

The bill, introduced by Revenue Minister Benson, calls for reclassification of government employees and changes 1,800 occupational units.

Mr. Decarie said a special committee of the 9,500-member LCU and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, with 11,000 members, will fight the bill by deluging members of Parliament with protests.

It also will try to gain support for its protests from political parties.

"We will take support from any party, from any MP, from wherever we can get it."

Mr. Decarie said a canvass of support across Canada indicated 85 per cent of the membership would vote to strike if the ballots now went out.

"We hope we don't have to strike to get a good ball, but we have a right to free collective bargaining."

James Johnston, Conservative national director, said the loss will not slow down the party's drive for Quebec support. No national issues were involved in the campaign.

In Newfoundland, Mr. Jamieson is the second man to hold the Burn-Burgeo seat. It was won after the island entered Confederation in 1949 by Cheley Carter, who was appointed to the Senate in July.

Mr. Jamieson has been mentioned as a possible Newfoundland representative in the federal cabinet if Transport Minister Pickersgill retires.

He quickly overwhelmed his only opponent, Eric Hiscok, 45, a Conservative who ran in the last federal election as a Social Credit candidate.

Three More Seats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Liberals gained a seat from the Progressive Conservatives in Quebec and retained two Newfoundland ridings Monday to strengthen their minority position in the Commons.

The byelections swept by the Liberals gave them 131 seats in the 265-seat House. Progressive Conservatives held 96, New Democrats 21, Creditistes 8, Social Credit 5, Independent 3, Vacant 1.

Florian Cote, a St. Brigid's de Saults farmer, scored an upset victory for the Liberals in Quebec's Nicolet-Yamaska riding. The seat has been Conservative since 1957.

Conservative Win Erased

In Nicolet-Yamaska, Mr. Cote jumped into an early lead over the four other candidates—Conservative Normand Beaudoin, 28, a high school principal, Georges Henri Forcier of the New Democrats and Independents Jean-Marie Democourt and Georges Grenier.

The Liberal victory erased the 5,000-vote win piled up by Conservative Clement Vincent in last November's general election. Mr. Vincent, now Quebec

Don Jamieson, 44-year-old former president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, easily held Newfoundland's Burn-Burgeo for the Liberals. Andrew Chisholm, 34, a mining company personnel manager, retained Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador for the Liberals.

The three byelections were the first held since the general election last November returned a minority Liberal government.

Person Extremely Pleased

Mr. Pearson was reported extremely pleased with the Nicolet-Yamaska victory and found the turnover "particularly significant."

Conservatives expressed disappointment and noted that their candidate, a teacher, faced a difficult task in running in a predominantly rural riding against a farmer and former president of the district farmers' union.

James Johnston, Conservative national director, said the loss will not slow down the party's drive for Quebec support. No national issues were involved in the campaign.

Layoff 'Scare'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Federation of Pacific Great Eastern Railway employees Monday accused the railway of attempting to scare workers into accepting a contract proposal by laying off men.

"It believes the company is using the layoff technique to try to frighten our members into accepting their proposal for a new contract," said federation spokesman Dave Chapman.

"I don't think it's going to work with any of our boys."

But the governor of Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, who is not recognized by the breakaway Smith regime, said he hopes it will lead to an early settlement of the independence crisis.

Smith's statement in Parliament was made amid speculation that the government might declare a republic on or about Nov. 11—first anniversary of Salisbury.

But he told Parliament the government might have to think again if Rhodesia is forced out of the Commonwealth.

Smith was speaking before the arrival Monday night of Herbert Bowden, British Commonwealth relations secretary, and Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones.

'An Awful Lot To Ask For'

REGINA (CP)—The 39 per cent wage increase being demanded by the Letter Carriers Union and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers is "extremely unreasonable," John LeBoldus of Odessa, Sask., Canadian Postmasters' Association national president said Monday.

"I think postal workers are underpaid and that reasonable wage demands should be met but I believe 39 per cent is an awful lot to ask for," Mr. LeBoldus said in a telephone interview.

"This is extremely unreasonable and the Canadian Postmasters' Association cannot go along with it at all."

Train Robbery Suspect Surrenders to Bobbies

LONDON (Reuters) — Police arrested former flower-store owner Ronald (Buster) Edwards Monday, ending a three-year international hunt for the man they suspect was the mastermind behind Britain's great train robbery of 1963.

A police car sped through deserted south London streets at 2 a.m. Monday to pick up one of the world's most wanted men, who may hold the clue to a missing £2,000,000 ($6,000,000).

Scotland Yard refused to give details of the arrest. But informed reports said Edwards, 35, was alone and offered no resistance. One theory was that, tired of the hunt and short of money, he arranged with the police to give himself up.

TIGHT SPOT

Another of the men on the run, James White, was in a tight financial situation when arrested in April. At his trial, he said underworld acquaintances blackmailed him out of his share of the train robbery loot.

The bill, given first reading by a vote of 112 to 40—says registered newspapers are not affected by its provisions.

Swedish Voters Stagger Ruling Social Democrats

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Sweden's ruling Social Democrats staggered under the worst blow at the polls for more than 30 years Monday, as voters made clear they were fed up with high prices, high taxation, inflation, and a severe housing shortage.

In municipal elections Sunday, the party won only 42.8 per cent of the total vote—more than eight per cent fewer than in the 1962 elections.

Prime Minister Tage Erlander, 65, called the defeat a landslide loss and hinted he may call a general election. He attributed the swing away from his party to a tough economic policy he introduced to combat inflation.

This policy has raised the general sales tax to 9.5 per cent from 6.4 per cent in a year, raised the bank rate to six per cent, drastically cut the building rate, and done nothing to curb the rising cost of living, which in the last year has soared 12 per cent.

Drive for Parity Starts in Yards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations began Monday between the major shipyards of Vancouver and Victoria and a joint committee of skilled trade unions, seeking parity in skilled trade rates and a 65-cent hourly wage increase.

The unions also asked for a 35-hour work week, to replace the present 40 hours, with no reduction in pay.

Present wage rates vary from $2.50 to $3.10 an hour. Heading the union list is the demand for the same wage for all skilled tradesmen.

Bitter feelings were aroused two years ago when plumbers, seeking an extra 10 cents to gain parity with electricians, continued a strike long after the other 20 unions had settled.

A spokesman for the unions said the parity demand is purposely designed to bring the matter to a head.

The electricians and plumbers are bargaining separately this year. Electricians and plumbers are paid 10 cents an hour more than other skilled tradesmen.

Republic Out Right Now For Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Prime Minister Ian Smith said Monday the government does not intend at this stage to declare Rhodesia a republic.

But he told Parliament the government might have to think again if Rhodesia is forced out of the Commonwealth.

Smith was speaking before the arrival Monday night of Herbert Bowden, British Commonwealth relations secretary, and Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones.

Conflicting statements from British and Smith have caused uncertainty over the visit's purpose.

But the governor of Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, who is not recognized by the breakaway Smith regime, said he hopes it will lead to an early settlement of the independence crisis.

Smith's statement in Parliament was made amid speculation that the government might declare a republic on or about Nov. 11—first anniversary of Salisbury.

Samoyed towers over Klitsa

Happiness Is Funny Lhasa-Apsol

PORT ALBERNI — I'm not sure which and bias, but I'm pretty sure it's a dog, was the reaction of other animals looking at three-month-old Lhasa-Apsol, purchased on the mainland by Bud and Peggy Bishop of Totem, Kemsley, Lakeshore Road, Spruce Lake.

The very rare puppy, a breed originating Tibet and used as a sentinel by priests in thangkales there, is a fine contrast to the distinguished Samoyed for which the Bishops have gained considerable prestige among dog fanciers.

"These little fellows make admirable house pets," Mrs. Bishop said.

"They have been bred to spend hours in complete quiet while the monks spend their time in meditation, but are instantly alert at the slightest unusual sound."

Trial

COURTENAY — The long process of entering Crown exhibits continues to occupy the preliminary hearing into a capital murder charge against Florian Gerard Lehoux.

He is charged in the bludgeon slaying of Dudley George Miller, in a lonely gatekeeper's shack near here.

Around the Island

Smashing Landing Saves Three

LADYSMITH — Three persons were taken unconscious from a 20-foot pleasure boat, and treated for carbon monoxide poisoning Sunday.

All are out of danger. They are Arthur and Gary Lindsay and Trem Debraze.

Arthur and Miss Debraze were overcome by fumes, and Gary aimed the boat for shore before losing consciousness.

The boat crashed into the dock at a marina near Ladysmith.

DUNCAN — At their first fall meeting tonight members of the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children will hear a report from Mrs. Rose Gibbons on the sheltered workshop.

Mrs. Gibbons is workshop supervisor.

Meeting place and time is the Arcadian School at 8 p.m.

COURTENAY — The supervisor of the Alcoholism Foundation, R. L. Clarkson, Victoria, will address a meeting of representatives from Courtenay clubs at a luncheon in the health unit Wednesday.

Some of the groups invited to send a delegate to the meeting are Chamber of Commerce, probation and welfare services, RCMP, nursing services and clergy.

Formation of a weekly clinic on alcoholism will be discussed. The time and day for the clinic will be chosen and the proper approach to the formation of such a clinic will also be among items discussed at the luncheon.

DUNCAN — Twenty-eight-year-old Howard Lucier of Duncan was fined $150 by Magistrate Lance Heard Monday.

Lucier had been charged with theft over $50.

He has had a previous conviction this year for possession of stolen property.

DUNCAN — There were two hit-and-run accidents over the weekend.

Edward Norton Harrison of Lake Cowichan, and Harold Richard Martin of Duncan, were hit by an unknown driver early Sunday morning.

Both accidents occurred at the junction of Trans-Canada Highway and Allenby Road.

DUNCAN — Born in Bloomfield, Iowa, Frank Fletcher Poterff died at King's Daughters Hospital Friday.

He was 86 years old.

He had come to Canada in 1906 and was a member of the United Farmers of Alberta.

He had been a resident of Duncan for 18 years.

Funeral services will take place from Hiest's Funeral Chapel Wednesday.

Five Counts Face Young Driver

UCLUELET — A young man appeared in police court here Monday facing a battery of serious driving charges.

Leslie Hillier, 20, Ucluelet, was charged with three counts of criminal negligence, one charge of dangerous driving, and one charge of impaired driving.

Bail was set at $2,000, and the case was remanded.

The charges followed a two-car accident on the Alberni-Tofino highway Sept. 7.

Nanaimo residents William Wether, 22, and Roy Frank Pettis, 22, died.

Invasion of Hunters Angers Islanders

By MARY BACKLUND

GALIANO ISLAND — Many people on Galiano are not happy with the conduct of hunters on the southern portion of the island during the first week of hunting season.

A serious hunting accident could have been much worse if there had not been competent help available.

This accident was the very first of the season, when it was only several hours old.

The accident victim and friends had no idea where to find help, but did manage to find sympathetic people who led them directly to the doctor and nurse.

There have been three cases of someone shooting at a supposed deer.

A woman told of hunters at dusk cruising along a road, and a small child coming out of the mist nearby on a trail.

This lady was thankful these hunters took a second look.

Another elderly woman on the south end of Galiano was spoken to rudely by a gang of hunters in a car, when she went out and informed them that they were in her private yard, and not in the woods.

This part of the island is heavily populated now, and most residents do not wish to have hunting on their property.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Gordon Whan came in as a substitute in the first of this season's district button matches, but he stole the show in Cowichan's 3-2 victory over Gorge Vale at Glen Meadows Sunday.

Whan took the place of Mike Kolb as partner to Norm Boden, and the up-land defenders created a surprise by beating the all-pro opposition presented by Bill Wakeham and Laurie Carroll.

What Whan did was to break a tie that existed up to the 11th hole. He won the next three holes with a par, a birdie and another par, a lead from which the Gorge pros never looked like rallying.

At the 12th, Whan was the only player to hit the green with his second. At the long 13th, he was in deep trouble off his drive but pitched out on to the fairway and then parked a No. 4 wood at the back of the green. He sank a good 40-footer for the bird.

Whan was the only one of the four to reach the narrow 14th green in regulation figures and again was the only one to hole out in par. Earlier Carroll had put Gorge Vale one up with a birdie at the first hole, and seven halves followed before Boden nipped in with a birdie at the ninth to square the match.

The Cowichan amateur was two over Glen Meadows par of 72 for the first 16. Boden and Wakeham were approximately two more.

Notable Demands

It was the first time an open competition had been played on the new Saanich peninsula course, and all four players were emphatic that here is a great course in the development stage.

Wakeham and Carroll were playing it for the first time. Using the long tees—7,014 yards, Wakeham was specially impressed with the demanding features of the 10 par-four holes.

"I did not use less than a five iron for my second at any of these holes, and I cannot remember another course in which I had to play so many long iron shots in one round." Even the four par-five holes present a tough challenge and the one structural complaint I heard was a feeling that a big tree right in front of the dogleg 16th hole—nearly 600 yards—was a little too demanding.

Boden said Glen Meadows would be a valuable addition to the playing facilities of the Victoria district, and there is little doubt that, with another year's work on fairways and greens, it will approach championship quality.

In Victoria recently on a visit to his mother, Roy Chapell, the former assistant pro at Victoria Golf Club, impressed with an improved swing and sharpening of his game since he went to the U.S.

Many Big Names

Roy this winter will again have his Florida job and, provided he can obtain a visa, Vaughan Trapp will go south as his assistant. The two worked together at Victoria a couple of years ago.

With practically all the starters on the U.S. gold trail taking part with a number of international celebrities as well, including Bruce Devlin and Bob Charles, the 52nd Canadian Open Championship looks like one of the outstanding events of the year.

Opening at Shaughnessy Sept. 29, it will continue with one round a day until the final round Oct. 2.

A number of places apart from those who have received invitations will be filled as a result of a qualifying round at Point Grey Golf Club Monday, Sept. 26. There is a pro-am tournament at Shaughnessy Sept. 28. All that is needed to make the show is fine weather.

An early upset in the Gorge Vale club championship was the first-round defeat of medalist Al McLeod. He fell Sunday to Boyd Brooks, who was approximately par when he won 2-1. Brooks, a six-handicapper at Gorge Vale, is the reigning champion.

Still holding the district senior buttons are Peter McIntyre and Bob Anderson of Victoria, who beat Chris Arthur and Jack Clark of Gorge Vale on the 15th at Uplands. Next challengers at Victoria are Ed Lovell and Dick Egan of Uplands.

Topping Sells

Warrior from CBS New Yankee Boss

NEW YORK (AP)—Dan Topping resigned as president of New York Yankees Monday, sold his stock to Columbia Broadcasting System and a CBS vice-president was named president and chairman of the board of the team.

Michael Burke, a member of the board of the Yankees since 1964, has been a vice-president of CBS in charge of development since 1962.

With the sale of Topping's 10 per cent of stock in the Yankees, CBS now is sole owner of the team.

PERSONAL REASONS
Topping, chief officer of the Yankees for the last 19 years, said he made his decision to resign for personal reasons.

"I have decided to divest myself of my financial interests in the Yankees and I am selling my stock to CBS."

"My family lives permanently in Florida and I have many other outside activities. I think it is in the best interests of the Yankees as well as for myself to leave at this time."

The Yankees won 15 American League pennants and 10

Burke

Burke, a one-time undercover agent, took charge effective immediately.

He alleged no immediate comment but scheduled a press conference for today.

TWO MEDALS

During the Second World War he served as an officer with the OSS. He won the Navy Cross for heroism and the Silver Star for gallantry in action behind enemy lines while working with the underground movements in France and Italy.

CBS bought 80 per cent control of the Yankees in August, 1964, from Topping and De-Webb. Webb sold his remaining 10 per cent a year later.

Topping, Webb and Larry MacPhail bought the Yankees from the estate of the late Jacob Ruppert prior to the start of the 1945 season. Topping and Webb bought MacPhail's one-third interest after the 1947 World Series.

Meets Patterson in London

Cooper's Ring Bath Tonight

LONDON (AP)—Henry Cooper, the British heavyweight champion, has mapped out his strategy for tonight's fight against Floyd Patterson.

And it's not going to be much of a secret.

Cooper plans to take a cold bath after the third round—right in front of Patterson and the fans at Wembley Stadium. Cooper's manager, Jim Wickes, unveiled the plan on the eve of the fight both heavyweights hope will get them another shot at Cassius Clay's world title.

The bath idea came to Wickes and Cooper as an answer to British champion's biggest problem—cuts over his eyes.

"It's only when Henry gets hot that he cuts," Wickes explained. "He's all right so long as he's cool. So if Patterson is still on his feet after three rounds, we'll have two extra water buckets and cool Henry down."

Patterson, in a nutshell, insisted again that one more loss would mean the end of his career. The former champion's marriage has broken up because he wouldn't quit, but he explained:

"I really want another fight with Clay."

Both Patterson, 32, and a 240-1 favorite, and Cooper, 33, have fought and lost to Clay in the last year. Patterson was humiliated in losing a 12-round technical knockout last November. Cooper was stopped on cuts in the sixth round last May.

Horrors—My Hair!

NEW YORK (AP)—Oscar (Ringo) Bonavena was more concerned Monday about a request from the New York Athletic Commission to cut his long hair than the 2-1 odds against him for his Wednesday night fight with undefeated Joe Frazier at Madison Square Garden.

"The odds are crazy," said the South American heavyweight king from Argentina. "I break his head. They will have to carry Frazier out. I no worry about him."

"But the commission gets me angry. They want me to cut my hair. I tell them no. I am like Samson. If I cut my hair I will lose my strength."

"I am like one of the Beatles," said Oscar, who got his nickname Ringo because of his admiration for the Beatles.

As a heavyweight, Bonavena is ranked ninth by Ring magazine on his 21-2 record including 17 knockouts. He is not ranked by the World Boxing Association.

Frazier, the 1964 Olympic champion, has won all 13 of his pro fights by knockouts. The 22-year-old Philadelphian has seen Bonavena fight and is confident he can beat the South American.

"He's strong as a bull," said Frazier. "But he can be hit. I can hit."

Hockey Union Takes Key Step Forward

CHICAGO (AP)—The merger of the Western and American hockey leagues loomed larger Monday after a meeting of committees of the two circuits.

The committees agreed to recommend the merger to their respective leagues. No time was set, nor were other details announced. An interlocking schedule was dropped for this season, but consideration is being given to a playoff between champions of each league.

'Boy Will I Have Steak Dinners!'

Hunger Halts Gallant Girl

Colonist Nanaimo reporter Fran Flitton was Neutral Party (scrutineer) on a heroic swim Sunday from Nanaimo to less than two miles from Sechart, by Victoria student and waitress Evelyn Creelman.

Miss Flitton and Vancouver photographer Bill Staley soon found they were hardly neutral, as they watched the cheerful, gallant swimmer battle tide, hunger and cold for 15 miles.

Mr. Staley, whose pictures appear on this page, swam with Miss Creelman for three hours near the end of the journey.

For more than 12 hours Miss Flitton sat in a small skiff cheering Evelyn on.

She sang to her, talked to her, threw bottles of orange juice to her, played the radio for her, and finally had to disqualify her, when the 18-year-old swimmer grasped the skiff for support.

The reporter, who looked into the sun so much she damaged her retina, and couldn't distinguish colors properly Monday, gave this account of the swim.

By Fran Flitton

We met in a parking lot in Nanaimo at 6 a.m. and began the trip to Piper's Lagoon.

Evelyn was calm and confident, despite the fact that the longest distance she had made in her life was two miles. Stan Creelman and his wife, 625 Macdonald Road, Lake Cowichan, came to see their daughter try the 17-mile trip from Nanaimo to the Sechart Peninsula.

Bill Moore, in St. John Ambulance uniform, was the official life saving advisor.

Evelyn's friends from her Victoria residence, 2354 Bellamy Road, Terry and Paquita Masten, were making the trip.

7:30 a.m.

We arrived at the 42-foot trawler Never on Sunday, owned by Stan Lambert.

Three persons stayed in a small skiff a few feet from Evelyn through the day.

Personnel rarely changed, usually Terry rowed, and I stayed in the back of the skiff talking to her. Bill Staley spent most of his time in the skiff.

Just after 7:30 Evelyn went into the water. The official temperature was 54 degrees on the trip, but we were told by officials the actual temperature was 10 to 15 degrees colder.

9 a.m.

The Never on Sunday couldn't go slow enough. Stan Lambert threw the stabilizers over, to try to slow the speed of the big trawler.

When Evelyn entered the water her goggles came away from around her neck, and she didn't see them again. She had to swim without goggles.

10 a.m.

The sun danced on the water like diamonds. It didn't bother Evelyn, but eventually it hurt the eyes of those of us looking back at her.

She was cheerful, despite discouraging news before the swim that an expected offer of $1,000 from a Nanaimo businessman didn't come through.

Frank Ney, a Nanaimo realtor, said the money would not be available until next year, Canada's centennial.

Noon

The radio station announced the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce would provide $1,000 for Evelyn if she was successful.

The swimmer, who planned to use the money to pay her business school tuition, gave a war whoop and threw her arms up, almost sinking.

The reported offer kept her going until she was almost finished, when she learned the offer was repudiated.

1 p.m.

Evelyn passed the half-way mark.

She was numb from the waist down. She couldn't feel her legs moving.

But she kept saying, "I can do it. I can do it."

We sang along with the radio, and it seemed to keep her spirits up. She kept smiling.

2 p.m.

Evelyn had been through two tides, and was to hit another before the swim was finished.

These tides contributed to her defeat.

She was credited with a 15-mile swim, but because of the tides, she actually swam at least 25 miles.

For the first nine hours, Evelyn didn't take anything to eat or drink. That may have been the decisive factor in the final failure.

4 p.m.

Evelyn could not straighten her fingers.

They were twisted into claws, and she kept waving her fists in the air, trying to free her fingers, but she couldn't move them.

A Vancouver radio station announced the swim was over, and the party had gone back to Nanaimo.

A fleet of boats and 200 people, waiting at Sechart, heard the false report and went home.

Evelyn kept swimming.

Bill Staley, dressed in a bathing suit and half of a wet suit, entered the water in mid-afternoon.

He swam beside Evelyn, keeping her spirits high, hoping to swim all the way to Sechart with her.

6 p.m.

We could see houses on the Sechart Peninsula.

We kept saying "See, it's right over there."

A church spire in the centre of Sechart was visible, and Evelyn used that as her target until the end of the swim.

"I'm going to church," she joked.

7 p.m.

"I wonder if my boyfriend will give me a bunch of roses when I make it?" Evelyn asked.

With the trip almost over, and lights blinking on in Sechart, Evelyn was caught in the final tide, and she was going two strokes back for every stroke forward.

She kept drinking in the tide, and fighting her way back on course.

Evelyn's earlier lack of food must have been slowing her down.

I threw her baby bottle of orange juice and glucose.

"Can I get something to take the salt taste out of my mouth?" she asked.

I threw her sugar cubes in a plastic bottle.

7:30 p.m.

Bill came out of the water after three hours. He was blue.

Evelyn couldn't keep her eyes open.

"Keep pushing your arms and legs and keep opening your eyes," I told her over and over again.

Evelyn kicks up her heels in smooth ocean on long struggle to make it to Sechart from Nanaimo

Grease before big swim

Fran, Evelyn chat after swim

Evelyn was still smiling. "Boy, am I going to have a few steak dinners!" she said.

7:59:30 p.m.

Contrary to reports Monday, Evelyn never had any cramps. Several times she felt pain in a leg where she had once pulled a tendon.

I started to go to the trolley to check the time. I looked back, and I saw Evelyn, exhausted, clutching the side of the skiff. I knew it was all over.

The boat circled Evelyn. She was told the truth about her distance from shore, one and one-half miles.

"I'm sorry," she said. "I can't go any more."

The St. John Ambulance official grasped her arms, and said "I've got her." But the grease made her as slippery as a seal, and she slipped out of his arms and plunged down between the skiff and the trolley.

For moments, she was helpless, caught between the vessels like a sheet of paper in a typewriter.

Terry got the skiff in proper position, and he and Bill Staley began rubbing the grease off with towels and a blanket.

We got her on the deck. She just lay there. Four of us went to work with towels. She kept smiling, and saying she was fine.

Aftermath

"I've never seen a swimmer bounce back that fast in my life," said the medical official, who has covered hundreds of swims.

About 50 people had remained on the dock, and when the community found out she had arrived, it went wild.

"I'll make it next year!" Evelyn said.

But Realtor Ney said the $1,000 offer for next year has been withdrawn.

Cowichan School Board Problem

Playing Fields Poor

DUNCAN — Trustees of Cowichan school district are determined to bring up to standard playing fields at the schools, and Chairman W.H. Dobson suggested a brief should be prepared for mid-October.

Assistant maintenance superintendent George Routley told the board Monday night he has surveyed between 40 and 50 per cent of all playing fields so far, and he will present a series of proposals.

The chairman said, "People in this area think we don't have one good playing field in our district and that is pretty strong criticism."

The problem of playing fields was discussed after Trustee Joseph Frumenlo suggested in next year's budget trustees should consider the cost of topsoil for the playing area at Duncan Elementary School.

Chairman Dobson said, "I think people will be behind us if we decide to build up the quality of our playing fields."

Mr. Routley said a total of $10,500 under Referendum No. 7 is being used now to improve the playing field at George Bonner Junior High School.

He said, "As soon as we get the game well established, it will be the best playing field in this area."

Board secretary G. F. Dyson told trustees the carpenter's dispute is tying up several thousands of dollars for vocational wing equipment.

Because of the dispute the $450,000 vocational wing adjacent to the Cowichan High School could not be completed in time for school opening earlier this month.

Mr. Dyson said because of board policy the equipment which has been delivered cannot be paid for unless it is installed and tested.

Mr. Routley said a large chunk of land near Courtenay is included in the city.

A letter read at council Monday, from Health Director Dr. G. A. Gibson, recommended the area bounded by Willemar Avenue, Arden Road, Puntledge River and Fraser Road, be included in boundary extension plans.

The suggestion was referred to the boundary extension committee.

NEW HIGHWAY

The city has been investigating boundary extension for some time. Plans were put aside until council could find out what route the new Island Highway will take.

Dr. Gibson reminded council there is a ditch in this area that has been causing trouble for several years, and health officials believe the area should be sewered.

QUALICUM BEACH — This village is fighting an application by Canadian Pacific Railway to close the local railway station.

The application is now before the Board of Transport commissioners.

Village council unanimously voted to object to the proposal and ordered a brief to be forwarded to the board expressing the objections.

SPECIAL MEETING

All interested parties were urged to attend a special meeting 7:30 p.m. today at the community hall.

U. B. McCallum, district inspector for the Transport Board, will hear reports on the extent of loss and inconvenience to the public arising from the proposed closure.

He is to advise the Board of the situation and aspects involved.

Village council has reviewed recommendations from B.C. Hydro regarding replacement of existing incandescent street lights along the Island Highway with new mercury vapor lamps.

It was decided to add six more of the new fixtures along the highway and also to replace lamps on Memorial and Second Avenues with mercury vapor lamps.

MORE PEOPLE

Council was advised the preliminary figure on the 1966 census shows the population of the village to be 815.

This figure will be increased by 151 when certification is received on the list of persons taken into the village since the census was taken.

A report on the airport showed that a register installed by the council had recorded 29 pilots having registered their planes during a six week period.

Some of the comments made by them regarding proposed improvements to the airport are to be considered for the future.

NEW PARK

Established

The highly-protected Class A park status was placed by the provincial cabinet Monday on a new park at the southern end of Hornby Island, south of Courtenay.

The 160 acres of open grass land with rock bluffs, scattered arbutus and fir trees and some beaches, was given to the provincial government by J. L. Helliwell of Vancouver.

Harold McWilliams, parks branch director, said "We are delighted to get it—it is a nice parklike area which is a lovely spot for picnics."

Helliwell Park as it is to be known, is accessible by ferry which runs from Fanny Bay to Denman Island and Hornby Island.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A former Olympic champion was discovered a half-hour after he set out.

Mr. Rajala, 35, was a member of the Finnish Olympic team some years ago. Ever since his arrival in Campbell River about eight years ago he has been active as a volunteer gym instructor on the recreation program and active with the IWA.

Divers found the body of Olli Rajala of Campbell River in 20 feet of water about a mile from the point where his 12-foot boat snapped. It dropped 30 feet, smashing against the steel barge's hull then toppled into the water which was 80 feet deep.

The 350-foot barge was loading from a boom at the Friell Logging Company.

Tahsis RCMP said the barge was equipped with a safety feature which would shut down the engine if any overload was placed on the boom.

An inquest has been called into the death and workmen's compensation officials are at the scene.

Postal workers applaud 30 per cent demand

Ottawa Refuses Raise

Strike Threat Scorned

Postmen Told 'No'

OTTAWA (CP) — A demand by the Letter Carriers Union of Canada for a 39 per cent pay increase by Nov. 15 just won't be met, Revenue Minister Benson said Monday.

The minister, commenting in an interview, said there was a possibility of an interim increase for post office employees this fall but the main review of their salaries would take five or six months to complete.

MONTHS REQUIRED

Roger Decarie, president of the 9,000-member Letter Carriers' Union, told a meeting attended by some 2,000 Ontario letter carriers in Toronto Sunday, a nationwide strike was likely to follow if the 39-per-cent increase wasn't forthcoming by Nov. 15.

Postal employees are included in the civil service pay grouping that comes under review Oct. 1. Any increases will be retroactive to that date, but months are required for union-government pay consultations and collection of pay data before the government announces such decisions.

DOLLAR PER HOUR

However, when salaries obviously lagged in some groupings in the past, the government has granted interim adjustments, then added to them when the pay review was completed.

Letter carriers seek a flat $1-an-hour increase, which would raise their starting pay to $6,200 from $4,200 yearly—a jump of nearly 48 per cent. However, at higher salary levels the percentage increase would be less, leading to an overall increase of about 39 per cent.

Decarie told LCU members in Toronto a strike would get solid support from other unions.

"If there is a strike it won't be in two or three cities. It will be from St. John's Nfld., to Vancouver."

"If we don't accept a government offer, the post offices will be closed down tight before Christmas and we'll wait for the cobwebs to take over."

The union also wants collective bargaining rights, which Mr. Decarie said would be denied them by a bill which recently passed second reading in the Commons.

The bill, introduced by Revenue Minister Benson, calls for reclassification of government employees and changes 1,800 occupational units.

Mr. Decarie said a special committee of the 9,500-member LCU and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, with 11,000 members, will fight the bill by deluging members of Parliament with protests.

It also will try to gain support for its protests from political parties.

"We will take support from any party, from any MP, from wherever we can get it."

Mr. Decarie said a canvass of support across Canada indicated 85 per cent of the membership would vote to strike if the ballots now went out.

"We hope we don't have to strike to get a good bill, but we have a right to free collective bargaining."

'An Awful Lot To Ask For'

REGINA (CP)—The 39 per cent wage increase being demanded by the Letter Carriers Union and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers is "extremely unreasonable," John LeBoldus of Odessa, Sask., Canadian Postmasters' Association national president said Monday.

"I think postal workers are underpaid and that reasonable wage demands should be met but I believe 39 per cent is an awful lot to ask for," Mr. LeBoldus said in a telephone interview.

"This is extremely unreasonable and the Canadian Postmasters' Association cannot go along with it at all."

Train Robbery Suspect Surrenders to Bobbies

LONDON (Reuters) — Police arrested former flower-store owner Ronald (Buster) Edwards Monday, ending a three-year international hunt for the man they suspect was the mastermind behind Britain's great train robbery of 1963.

A police car sped through deserted south London streets at 2 a.m. Monday to pick up one of the world's most wanted men, who may hold the clue to a missing $2,000,000 ($6,000,000).

Scotland Yard refused to give details of the arrest. But informed reports said Edwards, 35, was alone and offered no resistance. One theory was that, tired of the hunt and short of money, he arranged with the police to give himself up.

TIGHT SPOT

Another of the men on the run, James White, was in a tight financial situation when arrested in April. At his trial, he said underworld acquaintances blackmailed him out of his share of the train robbery loot.

Edwards had been sought throughout Europe and South America since August, 1963, when a gang pulled off one of

Egyptians Nab Yemenis

CAIRO, U.A.R. (UPI) — Egyptian authorities have taken Yemen Premier Hassan Al Amri and other Yemen leaders into custody after they came here to demand removal of Yemen President Abdullah Sallal, informed sources said Monday.

They said the group, which also included former premier Ahmed Noman, had been held incommunicado since Egyptian intelligence agents took them into custody Friday at Noman's residence here.

The Egyptian-controlled Sana Radio announced Sallal had accepted the resignations of the Yemen Republic Council and Cabinet and was forming a new government. The sources denied the detained men had resigned.

GRITS TAKE ALL THREE

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Liberals gained a seat from the Progressive Conservatives in Quebec and retained two Newfoundland ridings Monday to strengthen their minority position in the Commons.

The byelections sweep by the Liberals gave them 131 seats in the 265-seat House. Progressive Conservatives held 96, New Democrats 21, Creditistes 8, Social Credit 5, Independent 3, vacant 1.

Florian Cote, a Ste. Brigitte des Saules farmer, scored an upset victory for the Liberals in Quebec's Nicolet-Yamaska riding. The seat has been Conservative since 1957.

Don Jamieson, 44-year-old former president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, easily held Newfoundland's Burin-Burgoyne for the Liberals.

Andrew Chatwood, 34, a mining company personnel manager, retained Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador for the Liberals.

The three byelections were the first held since the general election last November returned a minority Liberal government.

Conservative Win Erased

In Nicolet-Yamaska, Mr. Cote jumped into an early lead over the four other candidates—Conservative Normand Beaudoin, 28, a high school principal, Georges Henri Fortier of the New Democrats and Independent Jean-Marie Democourt and Georges Grenier.

The Liberal victory erased the 5,600-vote win piled up by Conservative Clement Vincent in last November's general election. Mr. Vincent, now Quebec agriculture minister, resigned the seat and won election to the Quebec legislature in June.

In Ottawa, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker was attending a state dinner and reception at Government House for President Leopold Senghor of Senegal and was not available for comment.

Prime Minister Pearson, resting at home after the Commonwealth prime minister's conference, was kept posted on the results by aides.

Pearson Extremely Pleased

Mr. Pearson was reported extremely pleased with the Nicolet-Yamaska victory and found the turnover "particularly significant."

Conservatives expressed disappointment and noted that their candidate, a teacher, faced a difficult task in running in a predominantly rural riding against a farmer and former president of the district farmers' union.

James Johnston, Conservative national director, said the loss will not slow down the party's drive for Quebec support. No national issues were involved in the campaign.

In Newfoundland, Mr. Jamieson is the second man to hold the Burin-Burgoyne seat. It was won after the island entered Confederation in 1949 by Chesley Carter, who was appointed to the Senate in July.

Mr. Jamieson has been mentioned as a possible Newfoundland representative in the federal cabinet if Transport Minister Pickersgill retires.

Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador became vacant with the resignation of Charles R. Granger, who was appointed minister of Labrador affairs in the provincial Liberal government Aug. 1.

Freighter Aground, Sinking

The 140-ton U.S. cargo vessel Klabowya, from Juneau, Alaska, was aground today at 1 a.m. today in Huli, Que., where Alexis Caron died three weeks ago. No by-election date has been set.

Drive for Parity Starts in Yards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations began Monday between the major shipyards of Vancouver and Victoria and a joint committee of skilled trade unions, seeking parity in skilled trade rates and a 65-cent hourly wage increase.

The unions also asked for a 35-hour work week, to replace the present 40 hours, with no reduction in pay.

Present wage rates vary from $2.50 to $3.10 an hour. Heading the union list is the demand for the same wage for all skilled tradesmen.

Bitter feelings were aroused two years ago when plumbers, seeking an extra 10 cents to gain parity with electricians, continued a strike long after the other 20 unions had settled.

A spokesman for the unions said the parity demand is purposely designed to bring the matter to a head.

The electricians and plumbers are bargaining separately this year. Electricians and plumbers are paid 10 cents an hour more than other skilled tradesmen.

U.K. Officials Land

Republic Out Right Now For Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Prime Minister Ian Smith said Monday the government does not intend at this stage to declare Rhodesia a republic.

But he told Parliament the government might have to think again if Rhodesia is forced out of the Commonwealth.

Smith was speaking before the arrival Monday night of Herbert Bowden, British Commonwealth relations secretary, and Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones.

Conflicting statements from Britain and Smith have caused uncertainty over the visit's purpose.

But the governor of Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, who is not recognized by the breakaway Smith regime, said he hopes it will lead to an early settlement of the independence crisis.

Smith's statement in Parliament was made amid speculation that the government might declare a republic on or about Nov. 11—first anniversary of

CBC Staff Voting On Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The 500 members of the Toronto local of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians will vote tonight on whether to strike or accept a CBC offer to raise wages by 22.5 per cent in three stages over a 30-month period.

The remainder of the 1,800 NABET members across Canada will vote between today and next Tuesday when the ballots will be counted in Montreal.

Timothy J. O'Sullivan, chairman of the union's negotiating committee, said Monday he expects an overwhelming vote in favor of a strike.

A strike would close all CBC live broadcasting in Canada, including news reports.

Swedish Voters Stagger Ruling Social Democrats

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Sweden's ruling Social Democrats staggered under the worst blow at the polls for more than 30 years Monday, as voters made clear they were fed up with high prices, high taxation, inflation, and a severe housing shortage.

In municipal elections Sunday, the party won only 42.8 per cent of the total vote—more than eight per cent fewer than in the 1962 elections.

Prime Minister Tage Erlander, 65, called the defeat a landslide loss and hinted he may call a general election. He attributed the swing away from his party to a tough economic policy he introduced to combat inflation.

This policy has raised the general sales tax to 9.5 per cent from 6.4 per cent in a year, raised the bank rate to six per cent, drastically cut the building rate, and done nothing to curb the rising cost of living, which in the last year has soared 12 per cent.

Communists Split

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

PARIS (UPI) — Communist China and North Viet Nam are deeply split over the question of opening peace talks with the United States, according to information reaching Paris, it was learned today.

The Peking government, according to this information, has vetoed peace talks under any circumstances. The Communist Chinese were said to feel that continuation of the war would cause the United States to "lose face" in the Far East. Such a situation could only turn to the advantage of Communist China, it was said.

North Viet Nam, French sources said, has let it be known, however, that it would be willing to go to the peace table provided Washington gives a firm pledge of its intention of

'Coney Island' Problem

Chamber Blamed
For Flop
Of Tourist EffortBy A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

An effort to knock out the honky-tonk, Coney Island type of thing which is a drawback to the city was shot down in flames by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Ald. Clyde Savage charged Monday.

'Luckiest
People
Alive'

Three people missed death by inches when a 26-foot launch exploded sending the foredeck into the air at Shoal Harbor Sunday.

Mechanic John Grieve, 25, his mother, Mrs. Carita Grieve, 55, 7680 East Saanich and fiancé, Shirley Webster, 1933 Cultra, Saanichton, were pelted by the flying bridge and windshield after the explosion. Fire broke out seconds later.

OVER SIDE

Mr. Grieve lost no time abandoning ship. He threw his mother over the side and then his non-swimming fiancé then dived in himself and kept his fiancé on the surface by treading water.

"I don't know what could have caused it," said Mr. Grieve Monday night. The trio was starting on a fishing trip and had just cleared the breakwater at Van Isle Marina when the foredeck of the $8,000 K Gami II went up in the air.

BILGE DRY

Mr. Grieve said he had checked the bilge and it was perfectly dry and there was no sign of gas. He said since he bought the boat a week ago all the port holes and hatches were left open to air out the craft.

The trio floated around for five minutes before being picked up by William Elgin.

NO SMOKING

Mr. Grieve said there was no one smoking and there were no fumes.

The gutted craft was towed ashore and beached.

It was fully covered by insurance.

"We must be the luckiest people alive," said Mr. Grieve. "God knows how we escaped being hit by the flying woodwork. The whole thing just blew sky high."

Cabinet Approves
University Loans

The University of Victoria and University of British Columbia were given the go-ahead Monday by the provincial cabinet, to borrow $11,850,000 for construction of dormitories.

A cabinet order gave approval for University of Victoria to borrow up to $2,200,000 from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

This money, along with

He referred to the move by the mayor and members of city council to veto the tourist division of the chamber with the Victoria Visitors Bureau and generally co-ordinate the whole tourist industry in the Greater Victoria community.

"However, to our surprise, the chamber of commerce at that time would not accept in principle the advantages of integration with the tourist bureau and shot the whole program down in flames," Ald. Savage said.

FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

He understood, he added, some of the reasons for the chamber's apprehension. The bureau was having financial difficulties and there were other problems. But all these could have been sorted out and resolved if the chamber had agreed in principle.

This the chamber did not do and the opportunity to form an integrated, central, policy-making force which could have eliminated the 'tourist-trap' and Coney Island measures was lost.

BRIGHT SIDE

There was a bright side to the picture, however, Ald. Savage admitted.

The speech of the recently retired president of the chamber, Richard Bower, in which he urged a study in depth of the whole tourist industry and suggested, by implication, the formation of a central body armed with the power to control, was heartening, Ald. Savage said.

NEW HOPE

"I was most pleased and encouraged by the remarks of Mr. Bower," the alderman said. "It gives new hope that some sort of liaison or integration could take place. We badly need a central, solid, tourist industry control group in this city and the mayor and council are working toward this end."

In the same breath Ald. Savage took a walkout at merchants in this city who are making money from the tourist industry without contributing anything to its promotion.

MEMORANT APATHY

"I just can't understand the apathy and lack of support to the visitors' bureau from these people who are doing so well out of the tourists. We all know what a serious loss it would be to the economy of the city if the industry didn't exist."

Ald. Savage, chairman of the city council convention centre committee and its principal spokesman on matters related to the tourist industry, asked for the support of the business community in general and the chamber of commerce in particular to make this municipal industry the leading convention centre in the Pacific Northwest.

$1,800,000 from funds accruing to the university for capital development, is to be used for the construction of accommodation for students.

The cabinet authorized UBC to borrow $4,350,000 from CMHC for quarters for married graduate students and $5,300,000 from CMHC and the Bank of Montreal for accommodation for students.

John Howard Society

Salvage of Humans Success Story of Man

By JOHN MATTERS

When the John Howard Society opened a file on a Victorian man 15 years ago he was considered next to hopeless — a drunk, thief and bad cheque artist.

Today, that file weighs eight pounds, contains possibly 50,000 words in innumerable reports and the former thug has an excellent job, happy family and good home here.

While it's a success story of the John Howard Society and a victory for the convict, it becomes even more — almost a classic of man's humanity to man.

And it occurred at a time in history when human beings often are punitive in their outlook toward wrong-doers.

Yellow Sheet on Campus

Hatemongers Spreading
Anti-Jewish Literature

By WILLIAM THOMAS

Hate literature aimed at Jews was distributed on the University of Victoria campus Monday.

Two students, George Heyd and Russell Savage, saved a particularly virulent sample which urges students to take "a quick look at any university calendar which will show many obviously Jewish names. In also every case these are the men who are spreading their communistic ideas at our expense."

The yellow printed sheet continues: "Students should be careful to report such professors to their Christian parents and parents should attend some of their children's classes in order to see how the Jewish-Communists spread their filth."

The yellow sheet, published by the Christian Committee for Democracy and Freedom, goes on to take a swat at the hit movie Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, saying the film "is part of the international Jewish-Communist conspiracy. The film attacks one of our most sacred institutions—marriage."

PLAY ALLUDED

Legion to Hear
National Head

Royal Canadian Legion dominion president Ronald MacBeath will address area members at a meeting in the Trafalgar Branch at 8 p.m., Sept. 27.

Delegates from the 13 area branches will be present at the meeting.

Student Russell Savage commented, "This type of thing should be stopped but the people who put it out are too cowardly to put their name and address on this junk. It might not really be so dangerous but it seems ludicrous."

George Russell said, "we are both Christians and feel this type of stuff is a slander on all Christians."

ON LANSLOWNE

The pamphlets found by the students were on the Lansdowne Campus outside the Young Building.

The sheet entitled Truth and duplicated on bright yellow paper runs through the standard fallacies and half-truths including quotations from U.S. Nazi leader Lincoln Rockwell.

Both Mr. Russell and Mr. Savage said they intend to see if they can find who is distributing this vicious material.

Henderson Park Complex

Oak Bay Approves
Recreation Plans

By JIM BRAHAN

Development of a five-year plan for an Oak Bay municipal recreation complex was given the green light by council Monday night.

Council unanimously agreed that the recreation needs of the community now require the development of the designated Henderson Park for recreational purposes.

The question will be put to the electorate early in 1967 in the form of a referendum which will give approval for council to borrow the capital required to implement the five-year plan.

25 ACRES

Henderson Park will comprise some 25 acres along Cedar Hill Road, east of Henderson and south of the University of Victoria.

The final development of the proposed plan will include ice skating and hockey, an enclosed swimming pool and possibly curling.

Council also proposed that the referendum seek approval for suitable accommodation for senior citizens' activities as well as arts and crafts for all ages.

Thieves Steal
$485 in Jewels

A weekend break-in netted a thief $485 in jewellery and a set of binoculars.

Police found a basement door had been forced at the home of Mrs. Margaret Eastick, 1637 Oak Bay Avenue, and rings, locket chains and a set of binoculars had been taken.

It was suggested that this part of the program would probably be more practical in a separate location and the selection of a site will be studied.

A committee chaired by Coun. F. W. Hawes has accumulated information on existing facilities in other locations, which might be included in the ultimate plan.

Meetings will be held with the Oak Bay recreation commission and interested organizations in the municipality to determine which facilities will be most desirable and the priority in which they will be developed.

Council noted that the municipality has clear title to the property which was purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company in 1961 and therefore no money will be required for land acquisition.

It will also be able to make available certain funds from capital reserve to go towards cost of construction.

Council claimed the municipality to be in an exceedingly sound financial position as far as the existing direct debt is concerned.

NOT EXPECTED

This outstanding debt will be materially reduced during the next five-year period, therefore it is not expected to affect the mill rate to any great extent, according to council.

A total breakdown of the project's financial needs will be placed before the voters prior to the referendum.

Tragedies
Forecast

Small boats putting to sea in choppy waters have brought an RCMP forecast of a boating tragedy.

The warning came after four small boats flipped over in the rough weather around Sooke Sunday. Everyone was rescued and there were no injuries.

Turning the small boats "hastily" the RCMP pointed out that many craft using Sooke waters are too small and owners are in danger of getting drowned.

Man Sought
For Rape

Police are seeking Vernon Umphrey, 33, 620 Huxley, charged with the rape Thursday of a 20-year-old woman in a car parked near the Songhees Indian reserve.

The woman complained she and her companion were on Admirals Road at the time of the incident.

Umphrey was described by police as being six feet tall, weighing 190 pounds, and with blue eyes and brown hair.

Nurserymen Fight Scare
Caused by Nematode Ads

Southern Vancouver nurserymen charged Monday night that the federal department of agriculture is stirring up a golden nematode scare that could kill their business.

In a strongly-worded statement the Lower Vancouver Island Nurserymen's Association and Allied Trades attacked an advertisement sponsored by the department in last week-end newspapers.

The display advertisement warned about the dangers of transporting plant parts off the island, quarantined since the golden nematode was found in Saanich more than a year ago.

"What is the government trying to do?" asked the nursery-

men. "Are they trying to put us out of business?"

"The nematode scare has caused all nursery stock from here to be suspect in spite of the fact that all commercial nursery stock in this area is moving with government approval."

The statement said federal Agriculture Minister Greene and officials of his department stated they expected the quarantine would be lifted in all areas, except those with known nematode infestation, by June 1 this year.

"Despite further representations, this has not been done. The reasons given are that further testing is necessary."

"It now is more than a year since the testing was started and on practically all nurseries it has ceased."

Some nurserymen complained that stock are being detained in this area without any proof that they are infected.

"We challenge the department of agriculture to prove that the areas outside of this original field are infested."

Car Victim
Succumbs

Victim of a traffic accident Friday, Mrs. Nanette Wickes, 68, of 1638 Quadra, died Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

She was the city's third traffic fatality this year.

Mrs. Wickes was knocked down as she crossed Blanshard at Flagstaff.

Police said the driver of the car was Gary Anderson, of HMCS Macdonald.

An inquest has been called for 7:30 Wednesday at Thomson and Irving Funeral Chapel.

A HANDY GUIDE TO GREATER VICTORIA'S FINEST APARTMENTS

Apartment Life Steps Up

Luxury, prestige and peace of mind are three items which attract Victoria residents in ever-increasing numbers to become apartment-dwellers.

The modern apartment offers a life of ease to a tenant. They can enjoy inviting swimming pools set in lush gardens, sauna baths, sun decks, balconies, piped-in music and other benefits which produce an impressive aura of gracious living.

There is little comparison between today's apartment and those of pre-Second World War vintage.

Apartment dwellers in prewar Victoria made up only six per cent of the city's population, whereas now they stand at more than 18 per cent.

Professional planners say the move to apartment living will continue to increase as more and more people find it expensive and less attractive to live in the suburbs.

They claim the key to the present increasing trend to move from single-family dwellings into apartments lies in economics and convenience.

BIG POINT

A Victoria realtor said he felt man's natural laziness was also a big point in desirability of apartment life.

Aside from taking out the garbage, there are few other tasks connected with apartment tenancy, he said.

The realtor observed that Greater Victoria has apartments that cater to every taste and every pocketbook. There are the Garden apartments, which unlike most will take children. Scattered throughout the area are numerous three- and four-storey apartment buildings, all luxurious in varying degrees.

Then clawing skyward are the high-rises, in which cost and luxury depend on the number of floors up and the number of rooms.

But all have been designed with one primary purpose—a pleasant, carefree life for the tenants.

The inconveniences that used to be connected with multi-family dwellings have been refined out of modern apartment living. Resident managers are on call to iron out any threatened inconvenience from a leaky faucet to an over-volumed television set.

Suites vary in size as they do in rents in the various buildings, but the automatic elevator is an item they all have, whether it be a frame and stucco apartment or the lofty reinforced concrete and steel high-rise.

Even the elevator has been engineered for the pleasure of the tenants. They are generally high-speed, self-operated cars designed to ensure minimum waiting time.

"Elderly people have a fear of falling down steps," says an apartment manager. "The elevator makes it possible for them to live in a stair-free home, and this is hard to duplicate in a privately owned home."

Accommodation ranges from one-bedroom units to three-bedroom, two-bathroom units. Some contain more than 1,200 square feet of floor area.

Many have oak floors throughout. Others are completely equipped with wall-to-wall carpeting, while some have been finished in perpetually polished, highly-glazed vinyl.

All suites are equipped with electric ranges and fridges, and the buildings have fully automatic laundry facilities provided for tenant use.

Most of the apartments also supply window drapes to keep the exterior appearance of the building uniform.

"We require tenants to use the provided drapes, but if they desire they can have an extra track rod set up inside and hang their own drapes as well. This way, ours will be seen from the street and theirs from inside," the manager said.

"But if this is done, the additional track rod must remain fixed if and when the tenants move from the building," he added.

In many suites, large sliding glass doors lead out onto private balconies.

"I don't think more than 10 per cent of the balconies throughout the whole are ever used, but tenants prefer them just the same."

"Most likely it's the psychological effect of just being able to step outside into the fresh air whenever one feels like it. I guess it could be called some kind of an emotional escape hatch," he said.

LATEST FORM

Apartment life is not a new concept of living, because multiple-family dwellings have been around since the time of primitive man. The high-rise is just the latest form of development.

Multiple housing got its start in early times when families banded together for protection.

The transition to apartment living after spending many years in a single-family dwelling calls for considerable personal adjustment, said an apartment official.

"The first thing two people who have raised a family and are now on their own after some 25 or 30 years find, is that they have accumulated about 75 per cent more furniture than they can comfortably fit into an apartment."

"Another point is that seldom are animals allowed on the premises. We don't mind birds, and it's not because we don't like cats and dogs, but a suite is no place for them to be."

"Also, when pet owners move out of the building, the next tenants to occupy the suite may be allergic to cat fur, which could quite easily be still in the suite's carpeting."

WELCOME HELP

Moving into an apartment does not mean the green-thumb artist must give up gardening. Most apartment managers welcome suggestions and help in maintaining the building's landscaping.

Many of the most beautiful floral displays enhancing apartment grounds throughout the city were planted and are cared for by garden-happy tenants.

Like most modern buildings in this area, the high-rises have been designed to withstand earth tremors.

Their foundations are anchored to the bedrock with steel dowels to give the building strength in coping with any horizontal movement of the earth.

According to the Victoria fire department, the threat of fire in high-rises has been brought to a minimum by the buildings' design and construction.

"They are mostly concrete, and also have sensing devices throughout the building which trip off the fire alarm system when room temperature raises above a set point," a deputy fire chief explained.

He also pointed out that smoke towers — inside fire escapes — were located at the ends of the hallways.

"These are separated from the rest of the building by smoke doors with an automatic closing system, and have been designed to withstand fire for approximately three-quarters of an hour."

In event of emergency at any of Victoria's high-rises, the fire department has pre-planned its strategy for use on each individual high-rise.

The demand for apartments is increasing, says a property manager of one of Victoria's largest rental agencies.

"We only have three per cent vacancies at the present time. This is away down from what it was formerly."

One tenant who moved into an apartment some six months ago said he would not trade this new way of living for anything.

"I am finally free of being tied to a house."

"I can come home from work now without having to mow the lawn, water the garden, or fix some household gadget that has broken down during the day."

"I come in after a busy day, put on my swim trunks, and head for the pool."

He said to own a house was fine — he did for 25 years — but if a person really wanted to get some enjoyment out of life he recommended apartment living.

"All I'm required to do now is to pay the rent, and everything I need for good relaxed living is right at my fingertips."

Suites Enticing —And Different

The carefree life of the apartment dweller beckons enticingly to many retired couples, but there is much to be considered before answering the call.

"There is no comparison between apartment living and that of a single-family dwelling," says the manager of a Victoria luxury apartment building.

He observed that moving into a spacious, self-contained suite can give an elderly couple freedom they have not known for 20 or 30 years.

BIG RELIEF

"The biggest relief is there are no maintenance problems to nag the man of the house. The grounds are kept, and if any defects develop inside the apartment, they are taken care of by experts at no cost to the tenant.

"All a couple should actually have to do is sit back, relax and enjoy the comfort of their apartment.

"But for many it takes a big adjustment to accept this relaxing new way of living, after having owned their own house for many years. However, with a bit of planning the transition could be eased greatly," he said.

The manager said some

No Place For Pets

Although the elders of a family wish to take advantage of the easy life of an apartment dweller the lone dissenter, if he could vote, would be the family dog.

Apartment life is not a happy one for a dog or a cat.

Animals, with a tremendous amount of energy in their small frame need to run, and this is impossible in an apartment building.

Most of the new apartments in Victoria do not allow small animals in the building.

Many of the hallways and suites have their floors finished in wall-to-wall carpet which cats love to claw and dogs like to sleep on after being out in the rain.

Planning Eases Change

tenants get soured on apartment life because the building's locality is not suited for them.

"This often happens when they move too quickly and grab at a vacancy in order to be close to friends.

"Prospective tenants should select an apartment as carefully as they would buy a house, because some localities are more suited to certain people than others.

"Bus routes should be considered, nearness to stores, hospitals, churches and favorite places of entertainment," the manager emphasized.

"It might be the prettiest apartment in town, but if it's not located to suit the desires of the tenant, then you have an unhappy couple. This is all so unnecessary."

Some elderly people, he pointed out, are bothered by the thought of neighbors living above them.

SIMPLE ANSWER

"People with this worry should try to rent a top-floor suite."

The veteran manager said he totally favored the personal interview with prospective tenants.

"This is one of the best methods of ensuring they will be perfectly satisfied. And unless they are, there is a good chance they will become chronic complainers. This we do not want to happen — and there is no need for it ever to reach that stage, if understanding is used," he said.

He explained that most people will not complain unless there is a legitimate reason.

"But if I find a couple who are continually at me on the telephone about petty things, I try to determine the real reason for their apparent unhappiness.

"Mostly I find they are fine people who had lived next door to good neighbors for some 20 or more years and had never thought of complaining about them.

TRIES FOR MEETING

"First, I try to get them to meet the occupants of the neighboring apartments, and this usually does the trick. They find their new neighbors are mostly the same type of people they had lived next door to for years," he said.

One of the big secrets in apartment living is to be able to communicate on a friendly basis with other occupants.

"When they were homeowners, they thought it quite usual to converse across the backyard fence with the people next door. Take away the fence and the people are found to be just the same with or without the picket barrier.

"It takes time to adjust to living in an apartment, but nobody should ever be unhappy in one of them, because they were designed first and foremost for people to relax and enjoy themselves to the fullest, and thereby enjoy living this modern way."

Housework Loses Sting

No Upkeep Worries

Career Girl's Life Easier

Victoria's career women find the modern apartment takes the sting out of housework, after putting in an eight-hour day at the office.

The herculean task of a single woman playing the dual role of full-time worker and also housekeeper has been fully taken into consideration in designing the luxury suite which has given an entirely new concept to apartment life.

Compact design and use of the most recently-developed materials in construction mean the modern suite, although spacious, no longer presents problems that automatically went with those of comparable size in former times.

A Victoria secretary who lives on the top floor of a Dallas Road apartment says it takes her just over an hour to finish her housework.

"I'm a fussy housekeeper, too," she said. "It's amazingly easy to keep clean."

"The floors, with the exception of the halls, are finished in glazed vinyl which require no waxing and polishing. And believe me, this means a lot."

The hallways have wall-to-wall carpeting, but she preferred the remainder of the floors to be uncarpeted so scatter rugs could be used throughout.

"I find living here much more enjoyable than I did in old-type apartments."

"It's tough work for a woman to be employed full-time and have to keep a fairly large apartment or house shipshape, too."

Another point she found favorable was that there were no maintenance worries to plague a woman living alone.

"After paying my rent, all the rest of the housing problems only extend as far as the telephone. I can call our resident manager when the plumbing or lighting goes out of whack."

OTHER BILLS

"I have rented houses, and what a difference! After I had met the rent each month I still had oil, light, water and other miscellaneous bills to meet practically every payday."

Heavy expenditure items such as electric refrigerators, washers and dryers and draperies are normally supplied to today's apartment-dwellers.

"With such equipment included with a suite, the major furnishing expenses are eliminated on moving in," the secretary said.

Her suite does not have its own washing machine or dryer, but they are located in a laundry room. There are laundry facilities for each floor.

"We have set times for laundering, but this is very seldom adhered to, because there is normally a spare machine that is not in the use whenever I feel like doing the washing."

One of the major joys of her new suite is the large amount of cupboard space.

"This little detail may not mean much to a man, but cupboard space goes a long way to making a woman happy with her home life," she said.

The apartment building has a large recreation room available for tenants who wish to entertain large groups of friends which could not be properly accommodated in their suites.

"This not only solves the not-disturbing-the-neighbors problem, but it also saves having your suite all messed up," she said.

For Milady—everything within reach

Solution for Newlyweds

Newlyweds have been the butt of jokes since the wedding ceremony was first instituted, but setting up their first home has proved no joke since the era of the caveman.

Modern apartment living for perhaps the first time in history has solved this dilemma for young married couples.

No longer are they forced to rent one or two housekeeping rooms in a converted older home because they can't afford to furnish a house.

If perhaps they do have a small amount of furniture, it is no longer necessary for them to rattle around in a rented house with rooms shut off because they lack sufficient furnishings to make the unused rooms livable.

The modern suite designed specifically for today's living takes most of the problems in housing off the harried newlyweds.

They are often surprised to learn on talking their housing problems over with apartment managers that it takes very little outlay in furniture to furnish a suite of their choice.

The most expensive items such as electric ranges, refrigerators, washing machines, electric clothes dryers, and draperies are provided.

With the most expensive items taken care of in the rent, other items of furniture can be purchased to help them get a start in married life.

Most young married women now continue working, and the modern suite is the answer to her housekeeping problems, because they are very easy to keep clean.

Many of them have floors which have been finished in glazed vinyl which requires no polishing, others have complete wall-to-wall carpeting.

Bachelor's Dream Realized

The bachelor's dream has been realized by the high-rise apartment building.

Development of these lofty buildings in Victoria has led many single men from converted coat-closet flats into a decent environment with advantages they had previously considered out of their reach.

Some of the men prefer single bachelor apartments, and others have teamed up to share the expenses of suites containing two or three bedrooms.

One bachelor in his early 30s who shares a high-rise suite with two other men about the same age, said:

"I was paying more rent for what my former landlord classed a basement suite than I am for my share in living in this new building.

"The difference between the two is like comparing a Model T to a brand new Cadillac.

EVERYTHING THERE

"Everything anyone could ask for in the way of accommodation is included in the suite. There is nothing you have to beg from the landlord.

"The suite was unfurnished, but between us we bought enough for just a little more than $1,000 to fill the bill.

"When you consider that drapes, wall-to-wall carpeting, an electric stove and refrigerator are all supplied, it doesn't take an over-amount of furniture to fix the place up.

"We also have cablevision," he added.

SWIMMING POOL

The favorite haunt of the three men is the high-rise's heated swimming pool, with its water kept at about 83 degrees.

The pool is the focal point of a large enclosed courtyard, attractively screened from the street by a rock wall, which complements the building's extensive landscaping.

Clusters of chrome garden chairs, lounges, and gaily painted tables crowned with huge umbrellas, are spaced around the pool's edge so tenants and guests can relax in the afternoon sun.

SAUNA BATH

Another amenity the three bachelors enjoy in this high-rise is the sauna bath which is situated close to the pool.

The building's designers took some of the sting out of the curse of bachelorhood — laundering — when they incorporated an array of automatic washers and dryers into their plans.

Laundry rooms equipped with coin-operated machines have been strategically placed throughout the building for the tenants' convenience.

"We select our apartment staffs only after careful screening because the success of apartment living depends on their ability to keep the building functioning on a harmonious level.

"The architects, contractors and decorators have combined their talents to erect the best buildings possible, but without proper guidance from the resident managers they become just another batch of buildings of concrete or stucco to house people.

"We try to have our apartments develop individual characters. To take on an atmosphere that will not only make the present tenants happy, but to eventually have a list of preferred tenants waiting to take advantage of this new way of living," he said.

The former movie-type apartment landlord who was only interested in collecting the rents has no place in today's operation of a successful apartment.

"Our managers still collect the rents in most instances, but they also have many other functions to perform. They are not just friendly to the tenants because that is part of their job. We choose our apartment officials because of their natural charm and friendliness."

Taste, Age, Pocketbook

Units to Suit All

Victoria's new apartment buildings have been designed to suit every taste and most pocketbooks, says the property manager for one of the city's largest rental agencies.

"The new four-storey frame-and-stucco apartment buildings with rents ranging from $100 to $150 a month are more often preferred by elderly retired couples," he said.

"On the other hand, the high-rises seem to be the choice of the younger set. Rents in these run on a varying scale. Usually the higher up in the building a suite is located, the higher the rent.

"This is because of the better view one gets with height," he explained.

The manager noted there is a continuing demand in Victoria for every type of apartment rental and the once-vacant suites are rapidly being filled.

"Vacancies in the buildings managed by my company stand at only three per cent."

RETIRED PEOPLE

He did not say what the former percentage was.

The increasing demand for suites, he explained, is because of the great influx of retired elderly people coming here from the Prairies.

"Mostly they have sold their homes back east and no longer want to have all the work that goes into maintaining a house.

"They have read about the carefree apartment living where everything is at one's fingertips and all they have to do when they wish to take off anywhere is turn the key in the lock, and they are away," he said.

The installing of automatic elevators in practically all the newer apartments is a big selling point when retired people seek out an apartment, according to the property manager.

"It eliminates climbing of stairs, and as a person gets on in years, distrust of stairs becomes increasingly greater."

Courtesy Key To Happy Life

Applied courtesy is a major key to happy apartment living, according to the rental manager of one of Victoria's new 65-suite apartment buildings.

"This is perhaps the first time in many years that most of us have had to live in close proximity to other people.

"It is also maybe the first time in as many years that we have had to consider other people's feelings.

DIFFERENT STORY

"I know when I had my own house I didn't pay much attention to noise — especially if I was making it," he said. "But can you imagine the bedlam which would ensue here if all the men in this building thought and acted the way I used to? "Noise has to be downgraded in any apartment dwelling to make it livable for tenants.

"These suites were designed for gracious living. It would be impossible to get the best from them if occupants were continually bombarded with noise from the other suites," he said.

PIANOS TABOO

Pianos are taboo in his building.

"Some apartments will allow them, but most of them won't," he said. "Most other musical instruments are also on the banned list.

"It would drive tenants up the wall to have to listen to somebody in a neighboring apartment continually practising the scales on a piano, or sitting through session after session listening to a beginner on a violin."

BASS, TOO

Some of the city's apartments also have regulations which forbid the use of the bass component on stereo sets, he observed.

"Nobody has anything against music in moderation, but like many other things in apartment living, the next-door neighbors must be taken into consideration, and no tenant has the right to disrupt their way of life through his own selfishness."

Music Adds a Touch

Piped-in music is playing a large role in making high rise living a more pleasant life for the tenants.

The soft music in the entrance lobbies of the large buildings gives them a far homier atmosphere than would just a lavishly furnished foyer. The ear-pleasing strains add a touch to the surroundings that could only be supplied by music.

Tenants are also pleased to find the music is piped into the automatic elevators to give them a more pleasant trip.

Mother 'Retires'

No More Must She Be Jack-of-All-Trades

After being mother, housekeeper, cook, household furnace stoker, and non-title-holder of a million other tasks for some 25 years, a woman finds it takes a certain amount of skill to adapt to living in one of the new suites.

"It is quite a transition for a woman to come from a home where, to get anything done, she more than likely had to do it herself, and suddenly find she is living in a home where it takes almost no work to keep it looking like something out of a better homes magazine," said the manageress of a new Victoria apartment.

She claimed there is hardly a married woman in the city who at one time or another in her life hasn't been called on to fix leaky faucets, plugged sinks or change a blown fuse.

PICK UP TELEPHONE

"Now she finds that she no longer has to put up with hubby's procrastinating. All she has to do is pick up the telephone and call the manager, and presto! the trouble is fixed by a professional."

For a while the woman in the house feels slightly lost in her new surroundings, but if she decides to relax and enjoy her new life her rewards will be well worth the effort, said the manageress.

She will find she has more time to visit friends—and she will not have to rush the visits to get home in time to clean the apartment, because they have been designed for maximum ease in housekeeping.

The large amount of cupboard and closet space has been specifically arranged so items are not left in the open to give a too-well-lived-in look.

Another help is that on moving into an apartment from a single family dwelling the tenants will find they have far too much furniture to fit comfortably into a new suite.

"During years in a house it is surprising what a family can accumulate in the way of furniture. And of course the dusting and polishing always fell to mother."

She said she found herself quite relieved on moving into a suite at just how little dusting she had to do now.

"I'll never know why I didn't check out half of the stuff we had in the first place."

The manageress said she had found when most of the wives accustom themselves to apartment living they often say they would never go back to running a house again.

NEW HOBBIES

Many have taken up hobbies they had only dreamed of previously.

Some take a dislike to apartment living without ever giving it a chance, but most find for the first time they can sit back and, with a minimum of work, at last enjoy life.

Service Families Solution

Service families find garden apartment developments a god-send in solving the accommodation problems that accompany their transient mode of living.

One navy wife and mother of five says it seems she has spent a good third of her married life packing her brood back and forth across Canada.

"This is our second whack at renting in garden-type apartments, and they really suit a family like mine," she said.

WAITING LIST

Her suite has three bedrooms and two bathrooms.

"The services have married quarters for their people, but we always found we were on the wrong end of a mile-long waiting list.

"When you are plunked in a strange city with a herd like mine, just try and find a landlord in a decent part of town who will rent to you.

"On occasion we have been lucky and have found houses in good neighborhoods and have enjoyed our stay. But more occasionally we were forced to locate in rundown flats or houses that should have been condemned in Jacques Cartier's time."

She said she had found the housing situation worse in Eastern Canada than in the West.

She observed that her children, ranging in age from three to 15 years, seemed happier living in the "gardens."

"They find there are always other youngsters to play with.

"Also, they are not classed as strangers, because most of the tenants here are on a transient basis and the kids don't seem to class any new arrivals as new children. They just seem to join in with the rest.

FEEL SAFE

"I also feel safe here. My husband is away a lot of the time, and neighboring families being so close, it wouldn't take any time at all for help to arrive if I ever needed it.

"One good hearty scream out of me would be all that would be needed and they would be pounding on my door, because they know I am alone a good deal of the time.

"And even if they didn't come to my rescue, the manager would be here in a flash because someone would phone in and complain about my shrieking," she grinned.

Children learn to get along with other people when they live in a multi-family complex, and what is taboo for them."

A main feature in keeping the youngsters happy is the development's large, fully equipped playground with its swings, teeter-totters and sandboxes.

"It means a lot to a mother to know that her youngsters are playing in a fenced-in playground, completely out of the way of any traffic," she said.

During warm weather the focal point for the small fry is the garden's large swimming pool.

Many garden apartments have been located near shopping centres, which is convenient for the wives on shopping days.

BIGGEST POINT

"I imagine the coming and going of cars in a shopping plaza would bother people living in an apartment catering strictly to adults, but after listening to my kids all day, it wouldn't bother me if I lived next door to an artillery range," she twinkled.

For a family whose livelihood decrees for them a more or less transient way of life, thereby making any thoughts of buying a house impractical, the garden apartment is an answer to the housing problem.

Not only do the tenants find that the major appliances such as stoves, washers and dryers, refrigerators and drapes are provided, but the biggest point of all is that children are welcomed.

A visitor to the ENTERPHONE-equipped Royal Arms will pick up the handset in the lobby, press the desired suite button, and reach the tenant with single-line privacy and full telephone clarity.

UNIQUE DOOR-ANSWERING SYSTEM FOR ROYAL ARMS APARTMENT RESIDENTS

The tenant will answer the call from the lobby on her regular telephone. If she wishes to unlock the building entrance door, she simply dials "4".

Fine from any angle . . .

Cooking Cabbage?

It is now possible to cook cabbage in your apartment kitchen without having the neighbors know what you had for dinner.

Modern technology has solved the age old problem of the transmission of cooking odors in apartment buildings by pressurizing the hallways.

According to a Victoria engineer the hallways in today's apartment buildings are kept at a slightly higher air pressure than the suites and cooking odors are forced to escape by the vents or the open windows of the suites rather than accumulate in the halls.

Victoria's distinguished new Royal Arms apartments will have ENTERPHONETM. And that's good news for tenants. It means they can use their regular phone, or any extension they have, to answer the door when someone presses their suite button in the lobby. (The Royal Arms is a D.M.D. project located at 1320 Yates Street.)

This is just one of the features of ENTERPHONE, a major breakthrough in the apartment intercom field, which has been entirely engineered and developed as a continental first by B.C. Tel.

Unlike conventional intercom systems, ENTERPHONE requires no separate equipment or wiring in the apartments. It can be installed in any new or existing apartment building in conjunction with regular telephone service. This gives extra utility to the telephone, but with no interference to phone calls.

Door calls have a distinctive sound, two short rings every 5 seconds. If the tenant is on the phone when a door call comes in, she hears a subdued tone on the line. With this remarkable system, she can talk privately to her visitors and admit them, while her phone call is momentarily held. Not only that, she can receive door calls even if she has a party line that is busy.

For full details on ENTERPHONE call the B.C. Tel Marketing Department.

In Victoria call 386-2211. If out of town, ask the operator for ZENITH 7000. There is no charge.
